SUPRISE EVIDENCE AT HAUPTMANN TRIAL

Liberals To Cut Tariffs and Alter Empire Treaties

King Tells Commons His Party Will Begin To Remove Trade Restrictions As Soon As It Is Returned To Power

Some of Treaty Parts to Be Changed

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—The House of Commons has the promise of Mr. King, W. L. Mackenzie King, that the Liberal government will begin to remove trade restrictions as soon as it is returned to power.

The announcement that efforts would be made to delete the high tariff features of the empire trade agreements, to be introduced in the House on a resolution sponsored by Joseph Harris, Conservative, Toronto-Markham, to repeal the operations of the agreements. Debate had not concluded at the 11 o'clock adjournment hour. When the discussion resumed next week, John Brown, Liberal, Ligonier, Man., will be the first speaker.

HIGH TARIFFS MUST END

"It is this country is to be saved and get out of the depression, these high tariffs must go," said Mr. King, referring to the general removal of the agreements. The agreements had added more and more restrictions to trade and "extraneously high tariffs" which his party would clear away.

PROTECTS CROWN

After the completion of Mr. King's speech, the House adjourned. Mr. King, who made his first speech since taking office as Minister of Trade, the debate yesterday was a surprise to many. The Liberal government had been expected to introduce the agreements. Mr. King's speech was a surprise to many. The Liberal government had been expected to introduce the agreements.

UNUSUAL MOTION

At the close of his speech Mr. King said the motion was a most extraordinary one. In effect it asked the House to approve the policy (Turn to Page 2, Col. 3)

Call For Lifeboats To Be Picked Up Unanswered

New York, Feb. 1 (Associated Press).—A wireless message asking the freighter Tallman to pick up her lifeboats was sent from the sinking liner Mohawk, the radio log of the Algonquin, one of the rescue vessels, showed to-day. The Tallman received none of the survivors. Forty-six lost their lives. The Mohawk sank off New Jersey after being in collision with the Tallman, which was not slightly damaged.

Families Forced To Flee From Floods

Rapid Rise of Comox Lake and Puntledge River Compels Evacuation of Dwellings; Comox Is Without Water Supply; Elk River Line Washed Out; Campbell River Traffic Diverted

Courtenay, Feb. 1.—Rapid rise of Comox Lake, the headwaters of the Puntledge River, has caused evacuation of all the cabins on Comox Lake. Some of the houses are floating on the lake.

About twenty families of Cumberland people have had to move back into town, and houses built on skirts at the Comox Lake camp of the Comox Logging Company have had to be pulled on to higher ground.

SEA OF WATER

The flats at Courtenay are one sea of water from the river to the east slope. The water-line to Comox at Courtenay-bridge has been taken out and the east side of the town over the bridge and Comox is now without a water supply and may continue so until the flood subsides, as the line is deep under water. A few families on the east side of the river have moved over, but there is no immediate danger.

BRIDGE SWEEPED OUT

A log jam has swept out the temporary bridge and it is hanging over the river. All traffic from Campbell River and the north is routed through Courtenay and the junction of Puntledge and Tholun Rivers is full under water. The Comox road out of Courtenay to the cannery, a distance of a quarter of a mile, is under water, but cars can get through. Lewis Park in Courtenay is a sea of mud, water and log jams, and considerable damage has been done. Water at Grey River has caused a family at the bridge to evacuate, and Campbell River, near Campbell River, is under water.

E. J. Bourgeois Arrested In Baton Rouge; Long's Guard Beats Photographers

Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 1.—Ernest J. Bourgeois, president of the Square Deal Association of Louisiana fighting U.S. Senator Huey Long's dictatorship, was arrested to-day at association headquarters here.

A detachment of guardsmen surrounded the skyscraper building in which the Square Deal office are located, beat up officers and beat the militant Bourgeois under arrest.

He was led down the street by the guardsmen, followed by a great crowd of spectators.

Bourgeois was taken down the street toward the hotel in which Senator Long has his headquarters.

SURROUNDED BY THROPS

Senator Long was surrounded by guards and troops, when he reached Baton Rouge, one of his electrical cables at 2:45 this morning cut here and a half-hour he had arrived at New Orleans by train from Washington.

He swept into Baton Rouge, over under martial law, with 300 soldiers and an undetermined number of plain police, both in uniform and plain clothes.

TENDERS TO BE CALLED SOON

Hydrographic Survey Warehouse to Be Finished Before Marine Building Started

Tenders are about to be called by the Dominion Department of Public Works at Ottawa for the construction of a warehouse for the hydrographic survey service on the government property on the industrial reserve west of the Johnson Street bridge. It was learned here to-day.

The warehouse building will be a modern structure and in addition to large storage space will be equipped with a machine shop and other facilities to adequately take care of the hydrographic needs of the port. The building is expected to cost $40,000.

The decision of the government to build the hydrographic building was announced to-day. The construction of the proposed new marine building on Wharf Street, at the foot of Beaufort, The $100,000 construction of the building is to be used up on the warehouse project and the purchase of additional land, north of the existing marine building for the site of the new structure, which is to be used to house all federal government departments, in Victoria.

Further provision will be made to cover the construction of the marine building. It is believed when the estimates are brought down during the present session at Ottawa.

LEADERS MEET IN LONDON

British and French Premiers Discuss New European Plans

London, Feb. 1.—French circles reported to-day a communiqué has been drafted reaffirming Germany's right to arm equality within a system of general security, and will be issued at the conclusion of the Anglo-French ministerial conference to-morrow. The British Foreign Office declined to comment.

The British minister, however, that an official statement might be expected to-morrow indicating how the British and French intend to proceed in their efforts to ease the tension in Europe.

It was understood also that Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Pierre Laval, French Premier, will have an opportunity to discuss currency stabilization at a week-end party given by Sir Gomer Berry, London publisher.

EUROPEAN STABILITY

The Premier and Foreign Ministers of France and Great Britain outlined themselves at Number 10 Downing Street for the conference the British hope will make an important contribution to the stability of Europe.

Tentative Anglo-French agreement to co-operate in seeking disarmament through security for both armaments limitations and security was arrived by a French spokesman at the negotiations opened.

Diplomatic circles here regard the tentative agreement as an important victory for Great Britain.

LEIGHON'S REPLY

The initial meeting at No. 10 occupied three hours and no communiqué was given to the press at its close except to say the main delegates were moving through the private corridor to No. 11 for the luncheon offered by Sir Gomer Berry.

A luncheon, of some significance, was held by Sir Gomer Berry, vice-secretary of the Imperial Defence Committee, who has just completed an empire-wide tour. The chief guest was Lord Mac, general secretary of the French Foreign Office.

The meetings were conducted with the utmost cordiality, it was stated.

Appreciative comment was the most noticeable note in the chatter of the new news, most newspapers frankly discussing the prospects of early abrogation of the military clauses of the Versailles Treaty contained in Germany's demand for armaments to the League of Nations and understanding of international conventions.

Seattle, Feb. 1.—Robert Chambers, fifty-one, Washington, 28, was shot to-day by a mysterious bullet wound from a pistol his son said was used for "killing game," at Seattle.

WOMAN NERVOUS

He said the woman was very nervous. "That is what drew my attention to her," he testified.

He described the baby as about two years old.

The Lindbergh baby was only four months less than two years old.

"And did you get a good look at the woman on the trailer carrying the baby?" Kelly asked.

"I did."

"Now describe her actions in the trailer car with the baby."

"Well, she was holding the baby, and from the time she got on the trailer car she appeared very nervous. She had the baby this way (illustrated); she always had one foot—(illustrated). She was in the car, she was down up or stayed, she just appeared as though she was ready to jump out."

No Borrowing To Balance Budget

Saanich Completed 1934 Without Incurring Bank Overdraft Despite Extra Charges Which Had To Be Met; Bank Loan of $22,880 in 1933 Paid Off; Annual Report Shows

Despite a difficult year in which it was forced to meet reductions in government grants and pay to full many charges towards which the province had formerly contributed, the Saanich council was able to wind up 1934 with a balanced budget and pay off the 1933 bank overdraft of $22,880, it was revealed in the annual report released at the council meeting yesterday evening.

It was the first year since the beginning of the depression that the municipality was able to balance its budget without incurring a bank overdraft.

Outstanding among the accounts credited to the municipality were the amount paid for general taxes, sewage treatment, and other services.

Vancouver Pays Interest

Vancouver, Feb. 1.—Remission of $21,000 (approximately $20,000) was received by the city of Vancouver to-day to its bank account in London, England, to meet the interest on the loan taken out in 1933.

The interest payment was at the rate of 6 per cent and the loan was for $1,000,000.

The city council, at the request of Mayor G. C. McPherson, has approved that interest on the loan be paid out of the city's general fund.

Children On Ship Raided Off China

Two Russian Guards On Se. Tungchow Killed and Britisher Wounded By Chinese Pirates; Canadian, British and U.S. Children Safe

Hongkong, Feb. 1.—Two Russian guards aboard the steamship Tungchow, carrying twenty-five Canadian, British, United States and Scandinavian school children, were killed by pirates, according to a report to-day to the China Navigation Company's agents in Shanghai. All the children were reported safe.

The British second engineer of the ship, which is of British registry, K. McDonald, was reported wounded. The committee were presumed to have occurred during the battle for possession of the ship, later released.

The British naval intelligence staff in Shanghai was advised that the vessel headed for Junk Bay, Hongkong, after its release and was due to arrive late to-night.

Word of the steamer's safety came while British war vessels were combing China coastal waters in search of the craft, thirty-six hours overdue at Chefoo, its destination.

Children on board, with five teachers, were returning to the foreign mission school at Chefoo after a seven weeks holiday.

WAR VESSELS AID

The British Admiralty ordered three war vessels, the Sandwich, Suffolk and a destroyer, to speed to the aid of the missing craft.

The China Inland Mission station authorities at Shanghai said the majority of the children among the passengers were British subjects. These persons were mission teachers, officials and merchants residing in China.

Michigan Fishermen Face Danger As Coastguardsmen Seek To Reach Them

Superior, Mich., Feb. 1.—An ice carrying a group of fishermen was reported to have gone out into Lake Superior in danger of being lost to-day.

Despite darkness and the lake was calm but the ice was reported to be breaking up, threatening the open boats, some of the men, however, and the possibility of ice on the lake was understood.

PARAGUAY ARMY NEAR OBJECTIVE

Auction, Paraguay, Feb. 1.—General Jose Rodriguez's forces were reported to-day to be advancing against Villa Madero.

Private sources credited the Paraguayan army with the capture of several outposts in the Guaraní sector twenty miles north of Villa Madero.

Villa Madero is the Bolivian stronghold behind which lie the valuable oilfields which have been the Paraguayan objective in recent weeks in the long Chaco blood war.

THE RECORD SHOWS

WHEN PREMIER BENNETT SAYS
The Liberal party has no policy he merely ignores the record. We have heard a great deal lately about what the Prime Minister is going to do under what the country has been told is something in the nature of a "New Deal" for the Dominion.

It is worth while digging back into Canadian parliamentary history to discover just which party is the author of legislation in the interests of the people as a whole—not in the interests of the privileged few. Twenty-five years ago last month, for example, it was none other than Mr. Mackenzie King, then Minister of Labor in the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who introduced a bill in the House of Commons "to provide for the investigation of combines, monopolies, trusts, mergers which may enhance prices or restrict competition to the detriment of the consumer."

It will be recalled, incidentally, that the Prime Minister said over the radio recently that "if you do not want minimum wages, then support Mr. King; if you do not want maximum hours, then support Mr. King; if you are in favor of overtime, then support Mr. King; and a good deal more of the same sort of stuff. Indeed, it was as far back as 1898 that Mr. King drew attention to the manner in which government clothing contracts were being carried out in Canada. It was at that time that he began publicly to assert the necessity in relation to Canadian government work for state intervention.

Then again, he is noted, the Department of Labor was established by a Liberal government thirty-five years ago. Mr. Bennett's party can claim no credit for this important social measure, which, of course, emphasized from a Liberal point of view the necessity of state intervention in labor matters. There was another measure passed at that time, the Conciliation Act, directly concerning the Department of Labor. It was the first act of the federal Parliament for intervention in industrial disputes—not compulsory, but intervention by the government—with machinery for bringing opinion to bear on any dispute.

There followed, also a Liberal measure, the Conciliation and Labor Act, the Railway Disputes Arbitration Act. In the interim, of course, much of this legislation has undergone considerable consolidation; but the origin of it should be borne in mind. It was Liberal policy. The Fair Wages and Eight-hour Day Act, the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, the Government Ammunition Act, were likewise Liberal policies. The Prime Minister can not deny the truth of that statement.

Again in 1918, when a government composed of Liberals and Conservatives was running the country in a time of crisis, the Unemployment Offices Co-ordination Act went on to the statute books of the country. It may be safely assumed that the Liberals who were supporters of that government had a large share in the promotion of that legislation. The Technical Education Act of 1919 owed its origin to the social measures advocated and put through by the Liberal government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier—when Mr. Mackenzie King was, first of all, Deputy Minister of Labor, and then Minister of Labor.

So when the Prime Minister asks: "What has Mr. King done?" all he has to do is refer to the record to find out. And what has Mr. Bennett done, it may be asked. He is taking a good deal of credit for the Imperial Economic Pact. But he ignores the fact that it was the government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1897 which first of all gave tariff preferences to goods imported into Canada from the United Kingdom. Will Mr. Bennett argue that the United Kingdom has got a good deal from the 1932 economic parley?

"What has Mr. King done?" This is the question of the Prime Minister. Was it not the government of Mr. Mackenzie King which brought the trade of the Dominion up to a value of more than $2,600,000,000? It was. Was it not the government of Mr. Mackenzie King which, by 1930, had lapped off nearly $300,000,000 from the national debt? It was. Was it not the government of Mr. Mackenzie King which cut the sales tax from 4 per cent to 1 per cent? It was.

The questioning could go on ad infinitum and every question asked would, if faithfully answered, show that the Liberal party of Canada has faithfully lived up to the traditions of liberalism in every sense of the term.

A dispatch from Ottawa, yesterday, by the way, given an indication of what Mr. Mackenzie King intends to do in tariff matters when he is elected to form the next government—as, of course, he will be. He proposes to let down the shackles on trade as much as the trade and industry of this country will permit.

Mr. King believes, quite rightly, that prosperity—as do the bankers of the country—can only be restored by the free flow of commodities between nation and nation. No country can live and prosper by taking in its own washing. Economic nationalism has been tried and found wanting. The writing is on the wall.

A MOMENTOUS DECISION

THE OPINION OF THE UNITED STATES
Supreme Court which is expected will be announced on Monday regarding the constitutional power of Congress to alter the terms of national obligations to pay in gold, or its equivalent according to the face value of the contracts, is being awaited with the utmost concern all over the world. If the decision is adverse to the argument presented by the Attorney-General of the country on behalf of the government the whole structure of dollar devaluation will collapse and the price of gold, therefore, will revert to the value it held prior to January 31, 1934, when it was raised from $20.67 to $35 an ounce. Some $100,000,000,000 of bonds are involved and these will be worth $169,000,000,000 in present currency.

The Supreme Court, of course, appreciates the far-reaching consequences of its decision, and it is very likely that it will consider not only the constitution but the public interest—which is paramount in importance over the strict letter of the law—in giving its opinion. The court, which numbers nine justices of eminence and is one of the bulwarks of the nation, is considerably representative of liberal thought which may be expected to interpret the constitution in its broadest possible sense.

The case arose from the demand by holders of small bonds for payment in gold or the equivalent in present dollar currency. One of these bonds was for sixteen dollars and the holder asked for payment in gold or an equivalent of twenty-eight dollars. This, of course, was merely for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the whole devaluation structure. Many big issues at law affecting, in some cases, the destinies of nations have arisen from similar beginnings which while insignificant in themselves have embodied principles to which there was scarcely any limit.

SUBSIDIES AND CREWS

MR. THOMAS REID, M.P. FOR NEW
Westminster, raised a pertinent point in the House of Commons the other day when he urged that Canadian vessels which collectively are in receipt of more than a million dollars a year from the federal treasury for carrying mail should be required to employ white Canadian seamen instead of Orientals, and have their repairs done in Canadian ports. Only a small proportion of the crews of some of the ships plying between British Columbia and the Orient are white, while generally the repairs are done in Hongkong. The proportion is reversed in the case of the United States trans-Pacific ships which for the most part are manned by white citizens of that country.

The situation is complicated by the fact that the United States vessels are heavily subsidized by the government apart from the carriage of mail, but as a general principle it is beyond question that the Canadian ships should not only carry white Canadian crews but also should be repaired in Canadian ports. If the present subsidy is not sufficient to enable this to be done without involving the operating companies in heavy losses, the subsidies should be increased to meet the requirements of the situation.

Incidentally, with Canadian crews the number of seamen could be materially reduced, while in the repair work, which could be done here just as efficiently as in Hongkong, a score or so of white Canadian ship-workers could do more work in a day than several times that number of Orientals. Subsidies given to any interest, whether transportation or otherwise, should be expended in Canada as far as possible.

WE ARE GROWING OLDER

THE PEOPLE OF LIMA, PERU, HAVE been celebrating of late—celebrating the 400th anniversary of their city's founding. And in that celebration there is a gentle reminder that when civilization on the American continent is an older thing than we usually suppose.

Keeping our eyes within our own boundaries, we generally take it for granted that the traditions of the new world are all very short. But to go back four centuries into the past is to go back a long way. When Lima was founded, England's fight with the Spanish armada was still half a century in the future, Shakespeare was not yet born, and Martin Luther was still alive.

A society that can trace its lineage that far back is getting on in years. The United States and Canada may still be youthful; but Latin America is, as human societies go, well along in middle age.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

REPORT COURTESOUS
The Sporting and Dramatic

Two travellers arrived at the hotel and were shown a rather dingy room.
"What," said one, "does this pigsty cost?"
Promptly the proprietress replied: "For one pig, thirty shillings; for two pigs, fifty shillings."

THE DISASTER IN B.C.

The climatic experience of British Columbia in recent weeks and the loss of life and damage to property resulting therefrom is a matter of concern to the whole of Canada. Deep sympathy will be felt for those who have suffered and for the difficulties which all residents of that province are experiencing.

The heavy snowfall followed by enormous rains in the course of a few days have caused floods in the low lands around Vancouver in which there must have been heavy loss of livestock. The rush of water down hill-sides must have caused a serious leaching of the soil as well as done damage to fruit trees and plants.

The snow and rain was accompanied by temperatures remarkably low for the Pacific Coast littoral, causing death by freezing to a number of persons and seriously impeding, by the pressure of ice on streams and ditches, the flow-off of the abnormal rainfall.

The loss of life resulted chiefly, however, from slides in the mountains where either rains or the extraordinary amount of snow caused the breaking away of snow deposits and their precipitation down mountain slopes. This, too, accounted for the interruption of all traffic and communication.

For some days British Columbia was almost isolated and even yet news is obtained from there only with the greatest difficulty.
Residents of that province can console themselves with the thought that such things are rare occurrences. Indeed, it is the first event of that kind which has reached very serious proportions and the chances are it will not be repeated. That, however, is beyond human calculation and so long as there is a possibility it would seem the course of wisdom on the part of the authorities is to take whatever steps are possible to prevent the more serious consequences in the future.

Normally British Columbia is one of the most favored portions of Canada, climatically. The present condition is an exception.

A THOUGHT

Can not any therefore your confidence, which has great recognition of reward—indeed a lot. Trust men and they will be true to you; trust them and they will show themselves great—Bacon.

Loose Ends

Calgary seems quite happy—even in its snow-bound state—because it doesn't realize what it's like out in Victoria—and it isn't interested in our new ideas—its only idea is to grow green again.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

PRAIRIE TOWN

There is something infinitely pathetic about Calgary. After the green, clean beauty of Victoria, the spectacle of Calgary, located in a dreary, dirty valley of snow and frozen slush, is enough to make you weep in sympathy.

I went for a walk in Calgary just now to see what it was like. Up to now Calgary has always been for me just a place to pass through on the train, preferably in the middle of the night. I think it will be always just that in future.

These great prairie cities of ours are really prairie towns, with a little brick trimming, and the people are good, plain prairie folk, like the wheat farmers out there beyond the prairie. They aren't cultured and educated like us with generations of wealth, and they lack our background and they talk like Canadians and don't quite know how to wear their clothes. In fact, they are Canadians. That is the difference.

YOUTH

When you walk about Calgary in a January thaw, it's not hard to realize that only a little while ago the Indians were camping on the prairie here beside the river. Everything is new and raw as if it had been built last week. It looks as if men, driven from the prairie by the natives and the weather, had huddled together here for defence and company.

Calgary is still essentially a frontier settlement on the very edge of the wilderness. Its great Palliser Hotel, its street cars and stores, don't deceive you. A few yards off the prairie rolls on, white and grim and empty, to the long jagged blue line of the Rockies over there in the west. In this white immensity and silence, Calgary's ambitious buildings and miles of paved streets make a tiny spot on the prairie, a pathetic little challenge to the frozen wastes.

POOR FOLKS

AND THE WAY people have to live here is very moving to the sensitive Victorian soul. In Victoria the poorest man can have his little garden, green and gay even at this season. Here a prosperous citizen has a tiny spot of grass before his house (now brown and dead-looking where the snow has melted) and maybe a couple of spruce trees and an ugly bush or two of Siberian peonies. And every house is cluttered up with double storm windows and double doors, and every yard is a litter of dirty snow and heaped-up piles of dripping ice.

It gives you a start to realize that these people living here in this dreary human bungalow with minds and hearts and emotions, like us or almost, and children drag sleighs along the sidewalks and throw snow-balls and build snow men; apparently quite happy, apparently unconscious of their misery, apparently without realizing for a moment what it is like in Victoria. Probably it is best that they shouldn't know. It keeps them happier.

NEW COUNTRY

When you cross the mountains you are not merely in another province. You are in another country. The Gulf between British Columbia and the prairie, when you come to see it at first hand, is a striking thing. Down here they don't know anything about us. We don't know anything about them.

Your Baby and Mine
 BY MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

PRE-SCHOOL EDUCATION SHOULD BE FORMAL EDUCATION

Parents, meaningfully, find greater satisfaction in their children's development of mental rather than physical capacities. It seems clever when Johnny knows the letters on his blocks or pulls off nursery rhymes when he can button his shoes or walk his first steps alone. But it is not.

In the years before school time arrives a child will give Johnny a more rounded development of focus attention upon the accumulation of the arts of body control, rather than to today with its mental gymnastics.

It is a difficult art for the child to learn to walk. It means the acquisition of balance. But he will walk, because it is the nature of human beings to walk. He will learn to run and climb and walk on tiptoe and backward.

SHOULD A SPOON SPOON NATURAL?
 But then they tell their little ones that they must learn to spoon. They do not come naturally with spoon. Children have to learn to spoon. They learn to spoon by spooning. They learn to spoon by spooning. They learn to spoon by spooning.

If you are puzzled about how to spoon, you may find a copy of our booklet, "How to Spoon," in the "Pre-School Child" for a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address your request to Myrtle Meyer Elder in care of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

POUNCEING IS A GAME
 The years from one to five are the ideal ones for teaching them how to pounce. Pounce again will be the ideal game hours in the fascinating pastime of buttoning and unbuttoning his blouse. Pounce again will be the ideal game of carrying a fruit basket to the mouth, as if it were a game.

The child has no need for letters or figures in these years, but in his striving to become an independent and self-reliant individual he has vital need of these arts and capacities. The exceptional child will absorb knowledge with an effort, but for all others let parents be content to give them mastery of their bodies and have it to their hands to introduce them to the details of reading, writing and arithmetic.

Remember: "Avoid Solitary in Pouncing Stacks for Baby."

$1,500,000 Deal Is Swung By Woman

Canadian Press

London, Feb. 1.—One of the most ambitious London property deals ever carried through by a woman was completed the other day. The purchase price was approximately $1,500,000.

The deal involves sixty-seven blocks of residential property, consisting of more than 1,000 flats. The properties, formerly owned by a company, are spread over Kensington Park, W.1, and the surrounding areas.

The buyer is a wealthy Mayfair woman, until the deal was almost completed, was in personal charge of negotiations and acted as her own inspector, agent and surveyor.

UPSETS PARTY

Canadian Press

London, Feb. 1.—The history of motor racing is a long one. The first motor race was held in 1895, when a team of three British cars, entered in the Le Mans Grand Prix d'endurance, were driven around the circuit.

The drivers were: Miss Barbara Stanger, Miss Margaret Allan, Miss Joan Richmond, Miss E. M. Hillman, Miss Hugh Bates and Miss Dorcas Brann.

The race, which will take place in June at Le Mans, France, is considered to be the most gruelling test of both cars and drivers.

It means twenty-four hours' continuous driving over a ten-mile circuit.

There will be two drivers to each car and each woman will take the wheel for three hours at a stretch throughout the day-and-night contest.

There have been several instances in the past of cars with feminine crews, both French and English, but this will be the first time that a complete team of three cars, each with its pair of woman drivers, will be seen on the famous track.

The team has been entered by Capt. G. E. T. Eyston, himself a great driver and record breaker.

But the question still remains, is it right for women to break all these records and take part in all these gruelling competitions and races?

Dr. Archibald, honorary medical officer of the International Olympic athletic team, answers with a decisive no.

"There is no money for the business athlete," he said in an address to the British Association for Physical Training here. "His life is one continuous anxiety to keep in the limelight, realizing that the world is a cruel place and that there is no mercy for failure."

"I speak from experience. People only remember of the business athlete that he was beaten."

"With that anxiety before him, day and night, is there any wonder that symptoms of overfatigue through the nervous system must occur?"

HARDER ON WOMEN
 Dr. Archibald would expect it to be much worse in the case of the girl or young woman.

"Women," he said, "are a much higher type of nervous system, and therefore much less likely to stand up against the enormous strain of the business, the education, and the other pomp and circumstance of violent competition."

For that reason he had never hesitated to advise against Olympic Games for women and all other forms of highly competitive games, such as lawn tennis.

"I may perhaps be old-fashioned," he concluded, "but I must say that when I visualize the appearance of collapse and exhaustion in a male, an unpleasant enough spectacle in some circumstances, I can never bring myself to believe that it is not worse in the case of a woman."

"What can one think when a woman, as all athletes and reporters get up at a public meeting and report, 'I do not agree when they say that the province of women is love and the home?'"

This remark was made by Miss A. Kenyon, J.P., at the conference of the National Union of Women Teachers at Malvern.

QUEEN OF SNOW CARNIVAL

From the smiling valleys a mile below, where flowers bloom and orange groves thrive, this queen will lead her subjects to snowed peaks for the famed winter sports carnival on Los Angeles county playground at Big Pine. There Miss Jane Frances Malin will reign over the snow pastimes, including ski championships, starting February 2.

This remark was made by Miss A. Kenyon, J.P., at the conference of the National Union of Women Teachers at Malvern.

She was pointing the age-old cry of sex equality and the enormous concern at the increasing tendency to restrict the opportunities for women in employment, especially by preventing them from entering the higher grades of the professions.

WOMEN ON THE BENCH?
 Some of the speakers at a session was called at this meeting when Miss Constantine Colville, the London barrister and champion of women's rights, revealed that she had recently applied for a vacant judgeship.

"In the legal profession," she said, "I have been told that women will not apply for a judgeship because they are afraid."

"There was a tremendous vacuum, and though I know I could not go in, I applied for it."

"We owe a debt of gratitude," she continued, "to the Lord Chancellor for his recent statement that there is no reason why a woman should not sit on the Woolsack."

"So now I hope to hear soon that women are applying for every big vacancy in every profession."

"It is women want to have a greater freedom," she concluded, "they must accept greater responsibility."

Miss E. H. Green, secretary for the National Council of Equal Citizenship, said:

"Women ought to be judges, but we do not hold this view on the mere basis of sex. Appointments should be made on merit, without reference to sex."

"So long as the prime are withheld from them, women of ambition will not be attracted to enter the legal profession. It is time that this position was remedied."

Miss F. A. Underwood, secretary of the Women's Freedom League, declared:

"There is no reason in the world why a woman should not become a judge, or even a Lord Chief Justice."

"Our view is that the time is more than ripe for women judges in this country. The United States have them, and so have quite a number of other countries. Already we have women magistrates."

"Now that women have been something as barristers for so many years, it is surely possible to find more women candidates for the bench. Women have to conform to the laws of the land, just the same as men, and there is no reason why they should not have a share in the administration of these laws."

INHERIT WEAK MENTALITIES

Defective Parents Produced Seventeen Sub-normal Children, Report Shows

Canadian Press
 Preston, England, Feb. 1.—The case of two mentally defective parents who had seventeen children, of whom were also mentally defective, has been discussed by the Chester and Preston Guardian Committee. E. C. P. of Preston and the social work of the superintendent of the hospital, the husband was more than fifty and the wife more than forty years old.

Referring to some of the children, Mr. P. said: "I had had in infancy. Two others were certified as imbeciles. Three mental defectives were in institutions and two others were confined to mental hospitals. One was at school, but was of low mentality, and two, aged eight and nine, had never attended school."

Members of the Chester and Preston Guardian Committee have decided to urge the government to introduce a bill to legalize voluntary sterilization.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. BAGUE

A few years ago, you were hard put to it to meet an article outside of a novel—or else one of our very largest cities—today, so cheap and well distributed in this interesting, organized-in-France vegetable that one needs only a little spirit of adventure to become intimately acquainted with it.

One thing about the article is that it is usually most plentiful when other green things are scarce and high. The vegetable is cooked whole and should be fresh and green when it is put off the stalk. Usually one article is served to a person, either at the beginning of the meal or as a salad.

HOW TO PREPARE

To prepare for cooking, wash and cut stem close to leaves. Pull off hard outer leaves. Let stand in cold water to cover to which vinegar in the proportion of one tablespoon vinegar to one quart water has been added. Cook in boiling salted water for five minutes. Drain and serve with butter or mayonnaise. If it is eaten cold, you will prefer the steamed cold one.

Each leaf is pulled off with the thumb, using the stem and the soft part of the end of the leaf, the rest discarded. After all the leaves have been pulled away and the article is clean, the heart is eaten with a fork. The article is served in a separate individual dish or it can be served on the side of the plate.

ITALIAN STYLE ARTICHOKE

Four small globe artichokes, four tablespoons melted butter, salt, pepper, lemon juice or olive oil.

Prepare artichokes as in preceding recipe and parboil in salted water for fifteen minutes. Drain and arrange in a single layer in a buttered baking dish. Pour over the oil and sprinkle with cheese. Cover and bake in a moderate oven for fifteen minutes. Serve from the baking dish with segments of lemon.

Of course you would not serve artichokes with a cold or a cold heart, but almost any other meat may be served with artichokes. Lamb, fillet of beef, fish and chicken and sweet-bread dishes find artichokes a splendid accompanying vegetable.

The Jerusalem artichoke is something else again—a root but not really. It is served sometimes as a potato substitute and is good creamed, dipped in batter and fried in deep fat. Another way to serve it is to boil until tender and then reheat with melted butter, minced parsley and a little lemon juice.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

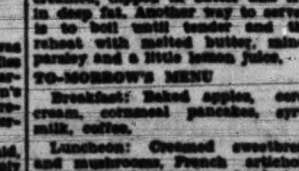

Breakfast: Baked apples, cereal, cream, toast, jam, orange juice, milk, coffee.

Lunch: Creamed artichokes and mushrooms, French artichokes with Hollandaise sauce, cherry tart, milk, tea.

Dinner: Rabbit and bean pie, creamed Jerusalem artichokes, salad of oranges and dates on crisp lettuce hearts, queen of puddings, milk, coffee.

London, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press cable).—It is expected that the bridegroom worn by the Duchess of Kent on the occasion of her marriage to Prince George of Greece on November 20 last eventually will be placed permanently in the London museum.

U.S. PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER IS BRIDE

London, Feb. 1.—A nine-year-old girl, Ellen Churchill, learned chess from watching her father as he learned, when she was five. She knew all the moves in a few weeks, now chess experts predict a great future for her in the chess world.

"She plays two hours a night and often during the day, but she never worries over it. She loves it too much," her mother says.

At the Imperial Chess Club house administration is also expressed for the scientific command of the game shown by fifteen-year-old Horace Duns of Finsbury, London. He has not lost a game so far. He always improves. "The only way to find a weak position of a false move is to analyze your games afterwards," he says.

New York Rangers Continue Sensational Hockey Comeback

THE SPORTS MIRROR

There is an unpleasant taste in the mouth of the Capital City hockey fans. The Capital City hockey fans are disappointed in the play of the New York Rangers. The Capital City hockey fans are disappointed in the play of the New York Rangers.

When they had certain grounds to be disappointed in the play of the New York Rangers, the Capital City hockey fans are disappointed in the play of the New York Rangers.

Shortly after the hockey season opened, the set-up looked a good deal better. The Capital City hockey fans are disappointed in the play of the New York Rangers.

The weather stopped in and prevented all play for a couple of weeks, and during that time the Capital City hockey fans are disappointed in the play of the New York Rangers.

Victims in the only hockey game played, the local boys appeared to have an edge on both Vancouver and Victoria. The Capital City hockey fans are disappointed in the play of the New York Rangers.

There is no suggestion that Vancouver was deficient in good hockey material this year. But it was tough on Victoria.

Another unusual feature of the business at the provincial union meeting, as carried in press dispatches, was the presence of the New York Rangers.

The try is definitely over. And the boys will still play. But they will probably find it a bit disheartening to see the rewards of good play in the concrete form of prize money.

Bill Tilden is the "best" of the tennis world. He is now being exploited by promoter Bill O'Brien, but the fact is apparent that without Tilden the touring game of racket sports would be just another bunch of well-meaning young fellows trying to make both ends meet.

Fifteen years of top flight tennis is a long time to yield a rounded piece of wood struck with a racket. He is still at it. There are times when he is just as spry as ever and giving the youngsters points in the art of serving or returning crooked shots across the net. He is the magnet attracting the fans.

Coupled with Ellsworth Vines in the first of a series of doubles featuring two former champions, Lester Breen and George Lott, the Capital City hockey fans are disappointed in the play of the New York Rangers.

Unfailing fans will see the games arranged in advance. If such is the case the fans are putting on a double act and feeling the sports.

CANADIENS AND DETROIT DRAW

Rushing along on the crest of the most convincing comeback wave the National Hockey League has seen in years, Lester Patrick's New York Rangers were more satisfied than ever today that nothing can keep them from the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Bringing their comeback record to eight wins and three ties in eleven games, Rangers yesterday evening defeated the Toronto Maroons 3 to 2 in a game which was probably the most exciting of the season.

The two points they collected lifted them to within four points of Chicago, the action leaders. The loss had Wings could do in Detroit yesterday evening was 4 to 4 with Leo Dandurand's Montreal Canadiens. Solidly in second place the Canadiens had a good chance of being eliminated.

THREE GOAL SPLURGE The Rangers scored three goals in the second period yesterday evening after Toronto had opened the counting on the first frame and carefully stood off Toronto's attempts to get more than one goal in the third.

Cec Dillon got two of the New York goals and Bert Connelly, former Montreal Hawk, the other. Andy Blair and Sam Bell scored the last goal.

Time and Canadiens played thrills-packed hockey at Detroit, the home team coming from behind to overcome a three-goal deficit. Wilder Leroy, who had been out of the game for a long time, scored the winning goal for the Canadiens.

The American's defense of Alex Smith and Bill Brydges let Russ Blum and Herb Cain through in the second frame to score two goals for the Maroons.

The shutout marked the sixth Alex Connell, Maroon goalie, has set up in his remarkable comeback after a season away from the game.

He played only twenty-three New York shots to join Tiny Thompson, Boston; Lorne Chabot, Chicago, and George Hainsworth, Toronto, in the list of goalies who have played half a dozen perfect games.

Rangers—Kerr, Starr, Gauthier, Boucher, W. Cook, F. Cook, Dillon, Murdoch, Keating, Mackenzie, Smith, Blair, Connelly, Mason and Patrick. Canadiens—Chapman and Goodman.

Portland Is Still Headed For First

Bucc continue winning drive in Northwest Hockey League to whip leading Seattle Hawks 3 to 1; tied for second with Vancouver.

Portland, Feb. 1.—Mingus Bobby Brown's early season heat that he would lead his Portland team into the Northwest Hockey League playoffs, apparently was no idle one. The team headed for Seattle today, confident they would humble the Hawks again in their midweek drive for the league leadership, and with yesterday evening's 3 to 1 victory over the Sound City club have leaving them in a second place tie with Vancouver.

Playing the same tight defensive game that gave them the decision over the Hawks in Vancouver Wednesday night, the team stood off all but one line Seattle threat, and that late in the third period when goalie Andy Allmanson was pulled out and replaced by goalie Mullaney.

SURPRISE EVIDENCE AT HAUPTMANN TRIAL

Liberals To Cut Tariffs and Alter Empire Treaties

King Tells Commons His Party Will Begin To Remove Trade Restrictions As Soon As It Is Returned To Power

Some of Treaty Parts to Be Changed

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—The House of Commons has the promise of Mr. Mackenzie King that his party will begin to remove trade restrictions as soon as it is returned to power.

The announcement that efforts would be made to delete the high tariff features of the pact and remove the impediments to trade was given by the Liberal leader yesterday evening in a debate in the House on a resolution sponsored by Joseph Harris, Conservative, Toronto-Bartholomew, to reclaim the operations of the agreements. Debate had not concluded at the 11 o'clock adjournment hour. When the discussion is resumed next week, John Brown, Liberal, Lingar, Man., will be the first speaker.

TRADE TARIFFS MUST END

"If this country is to be saved and get out of the depression, these high tariff must go," said Mr. King, referring to the general record of the government. The agreements had added more and more restrictions to trade and "extraordinarily high tariffs" which his party would clear away.

STUDIES QUOTE

With the exception of Mr. King and another from London, Hon. E. S. Bennett, who made his first major speech since taking office as Minister of Trade, the debate yesterday was mostly over figures. Liberals presented figures to show trade had been reduced under the Empire agreements. Conservatives presented other figures to show the agreements had increased trade along certain lines.

INCREASED MOTION

At the outset of his speech Mr. King said the British motion was a most extraordinary one. In effect it asked the House to approve the policy (Turn to Page 2, Col. 3)

Call For Lifeboats To Be Picked Up Unanswered

New York, Feb. 1 (Associated Press).—A wireless message, asking the freighter Tallman to pick up her lifeboats was sent from the sinking liner Mohawk, the radio log of the Algonquin, one of the rescue vessels, showed today. The Tallman received none of the survivors. Forty-six lost their lives. The Mohawk sank off New Jersey after being in collision with the Tallman, which was but slightly damaged. Above is a broadcast glimpse of the lost Mohawk.

Families Forced To Flee From Floods

Rapid Rise of Comox Lake and Puntledge River Compels Evacuation of Dwellings; Comox Is Without Water Supply; Elk River Line Washed Out; Campbell River Traffic Diverted

Courtenay, Feb. 1.—Rapid rise of Comox Lake, the headwaters of the Puntledge River, has caused evacuation of all the cabins on Comox Lake. Some of the houses are floating on the lake.

About twenty families of Cumberland people have had to move back into town, and houses built on skids at the Comox Lake camp of the Comox Logging Company have had to be pulled on to higher ground.

SEA OF WATER

The flats at Courtenay are one sea of water from the river to the east slope. The water-line to Comox at Courtenay Bridge has been taken out and the east side of the town over the bridge and Comox is now without a water supply and may continue so until the flood subsides, as the line is deep under water. A few families on the east side of the river have moved over, but there is no immediate danger.

BRIDGE WASHED OUT

A log jam has swept out the temporary bridge and it is hanging over the river. All traffic from Campbell River and the north is routed through Comox as the Island Highway between Courtenay and the junction of Puntledge and Tulum Rivers is fast under water. The Comox road out of Courtenay to the cannery, a distance of a quarter of a mile, is under water, but cars can get through. Lewis Park on the east side of the river is under water and log jams, and considerable damage has been done. Water at Courtenay has caused a family of five to evacuate, and a family of four, near Campbell River, is under water.

SUMAS FLOOD WATERS RISE

Situation Not Serious; Dike Repairs Will Take About Ten Days

Cannock, Feb. 1.—Waters on inundated Sumas prairie have risen slightly in the last two days, provincial police at Abbotsford reported today, but the situation was not considered serious.

The highway across the Sumas prairie is still covered with two and a half feet of water and will remain so until repairs to the broken dike, six miles east of Abbotsford, can be made. District Engineer H. C. Anderson announced. He said repairs would occupy ten days.

Henry Sherwood Dies In Ottawa

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—Henry Sherwood, eighty, brother of Sir Percy Sherwood and an official of the Dominion Lands Branch Interior Department for more than forty years, died yesterday.

Government Has Youth Aid Plan

Vocational Guidance Branch Will Be Launched This Year To Assist Young Men And Women Coming Out Of School And Seeking Employment; Physical And Recreational Training Programme Meets With Success

The second step in the provincial government's programme to assist the "depression generation" in British Columbia, was announced here today. In December the government launched a physical and recreational training plan to sponsor activities for young unemployed persons.

To-day Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, announced a Department of Vocational Guidance would be set up to tackle the problem of the young men and women coming out of school and facing the almost hopeless task of getting jobs.

Both programmes will be in direct co-operation with the Department of Education.

Mr. Pearson stated a modest beginning would be made in the vocational guidance plan this year. The government will set the Legislature to vote $7,500 to finance the work.

A vocational office, properly equipped in character and experience to deal with young people, to learn their aptitudes and help them to develop opportunities will be sought.

This office will have headquarters in Vancouver, assisting him in all parts of the province will be local voluntary committees which will be organized to develop the scheme.

E. J. Bourgeois Arrested In Baton Rouge; Long's Guard Beats Photographers

Associated Press
Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 1.—Ernest J. Bourgeois, president of the Square Deal Association of Louisiana fighting U.S. Senator Huey Long's dictatorship, was arrested today at association headquarters here.

A detachment of guardsmen surrounded the skyscraper building in which the Square Deal office is located, went upstairs and placed the militant Bourgeois under arrest.

He was led down the street by the guardsmen, followed by a great crowd of spectators.

Bourgeois was taken down the street toward the hotel in which Senator Long has his headquarters.

STREETED BY THROPS

Senator Long was surrounded by guards and troops, when he reached Baton Rouge. A detachment of guardsmen, equipped at 8.35 this morning, one hour and a half after he had arrived at New Orleans by train from Washington.

He swept into Baton Rouge, now under martial law, with 700 soldiers and an undetermined number of state police, both in uniform and plain clothes.

Two Russian Guards On S.S. Tungchow Killed And Britisher Wounded By Chinese Pirates; Canadian, British and U.S. Children Safe

Canadian Press
Hongkong, Feb. 1.—Two Russian guards aboard the steamship Tungchow, carrying twenty-five Canadian, British, United States and Scandinavian school children, were killed by pirates, according to a report today to the China Navigation Company's agents in Shanghai. All the children were reported safe.

The British second engineer of the ship, which is of British registry, J. McDonald, was reported wounded. The casualties were presumed to have occurred during the battle for possession of the ship, later released.

The British naval intelligence staff in Shanghai was advised that the vessel headed for Junk Bay, Hongkong, after its release and was due to arrive late to-night.

Word of the steamer's safety came when British war vessels were combing China coastal waters in search of the craft, thirty-six hours overdue at Chefoo, its destination.

Children on board, with five teachers, were returning to the foreign mission school at Chefoo after a seven weeks holiday.

WAR VESSELS AID

The British Admiralty ordered three war vessels, the Sandwich, Suffolk and a destroyer, to speed to the aid of the missing craft.

The China Inland Mission station authorities at Shanghai said the majority of the children among the passengers were British subjects. Their parents are missionaries, traders, officials and merchants residing in China.

Men Adrift On Ice In Lake Superior

Michigan Fishermen Face Danger As Coastguardsmen Seek To Reach Them

Associated Press
Marquette, Mich., Feb. 1.—An ice floe carrying a group of fishermen was reported to have gone out into Lake Superior from Green Bay today.

The report, received by coastguardsmen at Green Bay, twenty miles from here, was relayed to Captain Fred Bellman in charge of the Portage coastguard crew.

Captain Bellman said the ice floe was seen last week and the fishermen were seen on the open ice. Some of the fishermen, he said, the number of men on the floe was undetermined.

PARAGUAY ARMY NEAR OBJECTIVE

Associated Press
Asuncion, Paraguay, Feb. 1.—General Jose Estigarribia's forces were reported today to be "advancing against Villa Moron."

Private sources credited the Paraguayan forces with the capture of several outposts in the Carandaty sector, twenty miles north of Villa Moron.

Villa Moron is the Bolivian stronghold behind which is the valuable oilfield which have been the Paraguayan objective in recent weeks of the long Chaco River war.

Defence Man Identifies Pictures of Pair He Saw With Baby Kidnap Night

Jury at Flemington, N.J., Is Told Man and Woman in Pictures Were Late Isidor Fisch and Late Violet Sharpe

Associated Press
Flemington, N.J., Feb. 1.—A defence witness in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann here today identified pictures of a man and a woman whom he said he saw with a blond baby on the night Baby Charles A. Lindbergh was kidnapped and slain, and the defence announced the pictures he identified were of Isidor Fisch and Violet Sharpe.

Isidor Fisch died in Germany in the spring of 1924. Violet Sharpe, a maid in Mrs. Lindbergh's mother's home, committed suicide while the police were investigating the crime.

The witness was Peter E. Sommer, who said he was a fingerprint expert, now employed in the public welfare department of the city of New York.

He said he saw two men cross the Hudson River to New York from New Jersey on a third street ferry at 12.15 a.m. on the night of March 1, 1934, and saw the man assist a woman with a baby to board a third street train on the New York side.

Edward J. Reilly, chief defence attorney, showed him two pictures. He identified one as that of one of the men who helped the woman on the street car. This picture, Reilly said, is an aside, was of Fisch.

He identified the other picture on that of the woman. Reilly said, she said, that this was a picture of Violet Sharpe, the maid in the home of Mrs. Wright Morrow, who committed suicide just before police were to question her about the Lindbergh case for the fourth time.

WOMAN NERVOUS

He said the woman was very nervous. "That is what drew my attention to her," he testified.

"I saw the baby at about two years old. The Lindbergh baby was only four months less than two years old."

"And did you get a good look at the woman on the trolley car holding the baby?" Reilly asked.

"I did."

"Now describe her actions in the trolley car with the baby?"

"Why, she was holding the baby, and from the time she got on the trolley car she appeared very nervous. She had the baby this way (illustrated); she always had one foot on the floor and she held the baby as she showed up or stopped, she just appeared as though she was ready to jump out."

TENDERS TO BE CALLED SOON

Hydrographic Survey Warehouse to Be Finished Before Marine Building Started

Tenders are about to be called by the Dominion Department of Public Works at Ottawa for the erection of a warehouse for the hydrographic survey service on the government property on the industrial avenue west of the Johnson Street bridge. It was learned here today.

The warehouse building will be a modern structure and in addition to large storage space will be equipped with a machine shop and other facilities to adequately take care of the hydrographic needs of the port. This building is expected to cost $40,000.

The decision of the government to build the hydrographic survey warehouse first, probably delay the construction of the proposed new marine building on Wharf Street, at the foot of Broughton. The $100,000 appropriation, it is understood, will be used up on the warehouse project and the purchase of additional land, north of the existing marine building for the site of the new structure, is destined to house all federal government departments, in Victoria.

Further provision will be made to cover the construction of the marine building. It is believed when the estimate are brought down during the present session at Ottawa.

URGES LIMITS FOR INTEREST

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Feb. 1.—George Coote, United Farmer member for Macleod, Alberta, introduced a bill in the House of Commons today to limit interest rates. The general interest rate would be limited to 7 per cent and the mortgage rate to 4 per cent.

Under the Interest Act as it stands, there is no limit, any interest rate being collectable that is mutually agreeable. The farm member introduced a similar bill last year.

WITNESSES THREATENED

Hauptmann's Counsel Says "Plug Uglies" Menace Persons Called By Defence

Associated Press
Flemington, N.J., Feb. 1.—Defence counsel, introducing the first of their expert testimony today to counteract the state's evidence that Bruno Richard Hauptmann slew the Lindbergh baby, charged intimidation of the prisoner's alibi witnesses.

Edward J. Reilly, chief of the defence staff, said:

(1) "Because of my witnesses have been intimidated by men—plug uglies—who came to their homes and claimed they were representing the state of New Jersey."

(2) "Because of the prosecution's tactics against his witnesses—putting police on their trail while still keeping them under relentless cross-examination—he might call fifty more persons to testify. This would prolong the trial two or three weeks."

Reilly said the "plug uglies" showed no credence.

"They warned our witnesses to stay out of New Jersey if they knew what was good for them," he asserted.

"I'll say this much: I know they did not come from Attorney-General Winters for the prosecution, but I have a pretty good idea where they came from."

LEADERS MEET IN LONDON

British and French Premiers Discuss New European Plans

Canadian Press
London, Feb. 1.—French circles reported today a communiqué has been drafted reaffirming Germany's right to arms equality within a system of general security, and will be issued at the conclusion of the Anglo-French ministerial conference tomorrow. The British Foreign Office declined to comment.

The British ministerial conference, however, that an official statement might be expected tomorrow indicating how the British and French intend to proceed in their efforts to ease the tension in Europe.

It was understood also that Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Pierre-Etienne Flandin, French Premier, will have an opportunity to discuss currency stabilization at a week-end party given by Sir Gomer Berry, London publisher.

EUROPEAN STABILITY

The Premier and Foreign Ministers of France and Great Britain closed themselves at Number 10 Downing Street for the conference the British hope will make an important contribution to the stability of Europe.

Tentative Anglo-French agreement to co-operate in testing simultaneous European records for both armaments limitations and security was revealed by a French spokesman as the negotiations opened.

Diplomatic circles here regard the tentative agreement as an important victory for Great Britain.

LINDBERGH HELD

The initial meeting at No. 10 occupied three hours and no communiqué was given to the press at its conclusion except to say the main delegates were moving through the private corridor to No. 11 for the luncheon offered by Sir Hon. Stanley Baldwin.

A luncheon, of some significance, was held by Sir Maurice Hankey, veteran secretary of the Imperial Defence Committee, who has just completed an empire-wide tour. His chief guest was Leon Roel, general secretary of the French Foreign Office.

The meetings were conducted with the utmost cordiality, it was stated.

Speculative comment was the most emphatic note in the absence of official news, most newspapers frankly discussing the prospects of early abrogation of the military clauses of the Versailles Treaty contingent on Germany's simultaneous return to the League of Nations and undertaking of international commitments.

No Borrowing To Balance Budget

Saanich Completed 1934 Without Incurring Bank Overdraft Despite Extra Charges Which Had to Be Met; Bank Loan of $22,880 in 1933 Paid Off, Annual Report Shows

Debate on a difficult year in which it was forced to meet reductions in government grants and pay to full many charges towards which the province had formerly contributed, the Saanich council was able to wind up 1934 with a balanced budget and pay off the 1933 bank overdraft of $22,880. It was revealed in the annual report released at the council meeting yesterday evening.

It was the first year since the beginning of the depression that the municipality was able to balance its budget without incurring a bank overdraft.

Outstanding among the accounts credited to the municipality were the amount raised by general taxation, except taxation levied on the city.

Fox Farmer Dies Of Bullet Wound

Associated Press
Seattle, Feb. 1.—Robert Chambers, fifty-one, Woodville fox farmer, died today of a mysterious bullet wound from a pistol his son could not find for "calling fence."

From the amount of digging done by the dog and the condition of the man, it was estimated afterwards that he had been buried for about an hour. But for the dog, his death would have been almost certain as the slide was very deep and the man had no means of knowing which direction was the shortest way to dig himself out.

"This is another instance of the faithfulness of dogs," was one of the comments. "It brings to us how considerable people should be to man's best friend."

Vancouver Pays Interest

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Feb. 1.—Remittance of $21,500 (approximately $20,000) was forwarded by the city of Vancouver today to its bond agents in London, England, to meet the semi-annual interest charges on stock and debentures held in Great Britain.

Vancouver bonds held in London total $2,171,500 and debentures $2,978,000. The interest payment was at full existing rates of 4 and 4½ per cent.

The next payment will be due August 1.

The city council, at the request of Mayor C. O. McPherson, has proposed that interest rates on the city bonds held by the city be set at 4½ per cent.

Whitehorse, Y.T., Feb. 1.—Crew of an airplane, which carried four men to a mountainous area near the summit of White Pass, Wednesday was caused by poor visibility, according to the verdict of a coroner's jury.

John Llewellyn, section hand, testified he was at work in a snowed out area when the plane crashed. He saw the plane crash in a snowed out area and saw the plane's wreckage on the ground. He saw the plane's wreckage on the ground. He saw the plane's wreckage on the ground.

Surprise Evidence At Hauptmann Trial

He said the baby was wrapped in a blanket. The blanket slipped, he said, and he noticed the baby was dressed in a one-piece night garment.

The Lindbergh baby was a one-piece sleeping suit when stolen.

Washington, D.C., Feb. 1.—The combined opinion of eight state experts that Bruno Richard Hauptmann wrote the Lindbergh ransom note was disclosed today in the first defense expert testimony at the trial.

Hauptmann's attorney formally disclaimed part of the so-called "Fisch" note.

Former testimony that the late father Fisch might have written the note or Hauptmann's attorney formally disclaimed part of the so-called "Fisch" note.

Up to the noon recess, when he was still undergoing direct examination, Trendley took up the handwritten note by line and word by word to show why he believed Hauptmann was not the writer.

He charged, moreover, that the chart prepared by Albert A. Osborn, the chief handwriting expert for the state, which was used by Osborn and other experts to illustrate the handwriting of the ransom note, was not the writer.

STUDIED GIBBS' WRITING
John M. Trendley, chief of state police, who qualified as a handwriting expert over objections of the state yesterday, was called as a witness by the defense shortly after this forenoon session of the trial started.

The ransom note represents a cardinal point in the state's case against Hauptmann.

Q—Did you examine the handwriting of other persons, particularly Sidney Fisch?
A—Yes.

PATTERN OF HAND
Belli suddenly interrupted his interrogation on the ransom note to inquire what was the pattern of a hand's movement in handwriting.

Q—The method of the formation of the letters, replied Trendley.
Q—Is it possible to detect writing by the way a negative is taken?
A—Yes, you can do all that with photography.

Belli, by his series of questions on the photograph of handwriting, appeared to be laying the ground-work for an attack on the truthfulness of the state's photos of the Hauptmann writing which have been used for comparison with the ransom note.

Belli indicated a "we" in Hauptmann's writing.

Q—You do not find a "we" like that on the ransom note?
A—No.

Belli, referring to the "we" intended to be "where" in the ransom note, said it "sticks out."

Trendley examined the chart and reported neither the word nor any combination of its letters was shown.

DIFFERENCE IN "THEY"
Trendley said there was a difference between "the" and "they" and those in the ransom note.

Seeking Lower Interest Rate

Seeking the same treatment that London, Toronto and Vancouver, applications were made yesterday by Oak Bay and Nanaimo to have bank interest rates lowered by one half per cent to 4 1/2 per cent on all deposits.

The municipalities sent separate applications for the reduction to the Bank of Montreal. The reduced rates to the city were allowed early this week.

Albert Osborn, he said, had failed to photograph the ransom note "the" and "they" chief test produced a Christmas card bearing some handwriting which he said was identical to the ransom note.

Prosecution Counsel Lanigan objected to the production of the card, and Belli agreed to argue the point at sidebar during the recess which followed almost immediately.

WRITER NOT KNOWN
During the recess Belli denied the defense planned by its handwriting experts to accuse Sidney Fisch, Hauptmann's brother-in-law, of passing the ransom note.

He never contended Fisch wrote the note or that he perpetrated the crime, but he did contend that he believed he got the ransom money. We don't know who wrote the ransom note.

"We are not here," Belli added to his statement, "to prove who wrote the ransom note, but to prove Hauptmann did not write it."

It was also indicated that the defense, through implication, might try to convince the jury that Fisch had obtained the ransom money in any one of several ways.

DISMISSED WRITING
Belli's argument, a combination of the ransom note would you say it was written fresh and disguised?

A—It was written disguised.
Q—Was it written and part printed?
A—Yes. It is my opinion the left hand may have been used some time.

He referred specifically to the word "public" in the note and said it gave every indication of being written with greater effort and care than the rest of the note.

"It was probably written with the left hand," he observed, adding he had considerable experience in identifying handwriting.

The defense attorney said he would proceed without the book, but Justice Trendley asked Hauptmann to identify the book.

Lanigan did.
Does that appear to have been written in the left hand?
Trendley, indicating a word in the first ransom note.

"No, but it was written with some difficulty," Trendley answered.
The court then took his luncheon recess.

As yesterday's session of the trial Louis King, a British artist, testified he saw the Lindbergh baby in the arms of the kidnaper on the night of March 1, 1932, the night of the Lindbergh kidnapping—and saw Hauptmann enter with the baby on the night of March 1, 1932, the night of the Lindbergh kidnapping.

John M. Trendley, the expert, declared it was impossible to identify the handwriting of the ransom note as being that of Hauptmann's, known as the nursery note, was written by a left-handed man trying to disguise his handwriting.

He charged, moreover, that the chart prepared by Albert A. Osborn, the chief handwriting expert for the state, which was used by Osborn and other experts to illustrate the handwriting of the ransom note, was not the writer.

DECISION IN PIONEER CASE

Privy Council Dismisses Ferguson Appeal for Ownership of Gold Shares

Canadian Press
London, Feb. 1.—The appeal of Andrew Ferguson, Vancouver, and the Peter Ferguson estate against the estate of the late Adam H. Ferguson, owner of the late Pioneer Gold Mines of British Columbia, was dismissed with costs in a judgment handed down today by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

The respondents were Alfred Bull, Brigadier-General J. Duff Stuart, Dr. R. B. Boucher and Dr. Francis J. Nicholson, together with the estate of Mr. Wallbridge. The plaintiffs were acting on behalf of minority shareholders of the late Pioneer Gold Mines Limited, fourteen in number, of whom ten live in Britain.

The judgment ended a long legal struggle to decide ownership of the disputed gold shares.

The appeal was heard by Privy Council last July, but judgment was reserved until the present sitting.

Liberals To Cut Tariffs and Alter Empire Treaties

of the government, which was well-known and had been long approved by a majority of the House.

He suggested the real reason was to shut off discussion of the agreements later on to a former speaker, had ruled the same subject could not be debated twice in the same session.

Another possible reason was that Mr. Bennett wanted more time to prepare his reform policy.

"I say that instead of discussing these trade agreements, which are of no immediate concern," said Mr. King, "this House should be discussing unemployment in a practical way."

BY-ELECTION RESULTS
The Liberal leader said the agreements had been before the people at by-elections since 1922, and in all but one, a Liberal had been returned in opposition to the government.

In the last two years ward conditions had improved, continued Mr. King. This had resulted in increased trade between Canada and all countries. He said these world factors had led to Canada's increased trade and not the Ottawa agreements.

Canada's trade with the United States stood at $272,000,000 in 1922-23 and $482,000,000 in 1934-35, said Mr. King. This increase could not be attributed to the Ottawa agreements, but to world conditions and all countries.

It must be remembered, said Mr. King, the Canadian dollar was worth 100 cents under his government and only 60 cents today. This would account for a large part of the increase in trade and export income.

POLICY OF RESTRICTION
The agreements, continued Mr. King, "are founded on the policy of protection, of restriction of trade, not on a policy of freedom of trade."

The government, said Mr. King, recognized the high tariffs being enacted in 1922 and 1930, and made every effort we could to get an export of the United Kingdom market.

The Dunning Budget (of 1930) was designed for that purpose.

It was impossible to say what would have been the result of the Dunning Budget, he said, because it went out of office two or three months later. But, Mr. King said, he believed the Dunning Budget would have produced greater trade than the Ottawa agreements.

The record of the Bennett Government, continued Mr. King, had been higher and higher tariffs and restriction of trade would be possible. He quoted Mr. Stanley Baldwin as the Ottawa Conference of suggesting "we aim at the lowering barriers."

When Mr. Baldwin's suggestion of lowering barriers was accepted, it was the greatest mistake ever made in this country.

A complete line of demarcation between the government and the Liberals existed, said Mr. King. The Liberals were not opposed to trade agreements, but they were opposed to wrong methods of negotiation, to wrong principles in the agreements themselves and to methods, detrimental to the trade of Canada.

There was no evidence, Mr. King went on, that those industries supposed to have benefited from the agreements would not have benefited. It would have been a strange thing, however, if some small industry had not benefited. The aim of the government, however, should not be to confer a benefit on a few privileged interests in one part of Canada, but on the larger interests of the whole of Canada.

"The fact is," said Mr. King, "these agreements are founded on a policy of extraordinary protection and extremely high tariffs. We feel if this country is to be saved at all and get out of this depression, this high tariff policy will have to go."

TRADE WITH ALL
The Liberal policy was to promote trade with all countries, to abolish extraordinary increases in tariff made by the present government, to do away with all unwaranteed extra duties on imports and to provide tariff stability through allowing no more changes by order-in-council.

SUBSTANTIAL PREFERENCE
The Liberals would continue their established policy of to import trade and grant the United Kingdom a substantial preference.

"We cannot accept these agreements in the form in which they are now," said Mr. King, "without unduly curtailing in all our policies."

The change in Liberal policy from a 50 per cent preference to the United Kingdom to a "substantial" preference was no change in principle, as Mr. King said, but a change in the United Kingdom was a free trade country, but it was now a protectionist country, so the preference agreements could not be the same. This preference appropriate now would depend on negotiations.

The Ottawa agreements made negotiations with other countries more difficult, continued the Liberal leader. The United States government was preparing to negotiate a treaty with Canada although there was good reason to believe they started two years ago, but "these treaties stood in the way."

CHANGES MUST BE MADE
Changes would have to be made in the Ottawa agreements before a treaty with the United States could be negotiated, said Mr. King, and they would have to be changed before other treaties could be made.

Another reason the Liberals could not accept the agreements was because Canada was being bound for a period of years to pay its tariff at a certain level, said Mr. King. "They cannot remain as they are if another negotiation comes into effect."

"I have never said I would cancel these agreements," said Mr. King. "I have only said several Conservative."

"I challenge you to point to any statement of that kind," said Mr. King, but there was no reply.

He never said they would cancel the agreements, repeated Mr. King. "I have said, and I say now, that if we come into office there are features in these agreements which we may think desirable."

If returned to power, "I do not propose to set toward Great Britain in the manner of the Prime Minister when he came into office. I am not going to go to England and threaten and bully the English people on what is their own concern."

BY DISCUSSION
The Liberals, continued Mr. King, if put in office would let London know what features of the agreements they wanted and which must be changed.

If the changes could be arranged mutually, then that course would be followed. "If we could not, then changes we believe the Canadian people wished, we would reserve the right to say we would cancel them in whole or in part."

One of the first things his government would do, would be to seek modifications from London, repeated Mr. King. If changes could not be agreed, "there is time to consider what their place should be to have."

"I have every reason to believe the British government will welcome an opportunity to change these agreements," said Mr. King, "if there is a desire in all parts of the empire to have them modified."

POSITION OF AUSTRALIA
The way the agreements were viewed in Australia was well known, said Mr. King. The state of Western Australia was willing to accept the Australian Commonwealth because of the federal tariff.

Mr. Bennett had accused him of opposing an improvement in the position of Canada. He was opposed to the agreements, said Mr. King. The impression the people of England had was based on the by-elections in Canada, where, of course, the Liberal opposition had come against the government.

INTEREST CUE
Charles B. Stewart, Liberal, Sherbrooke, Que., criticized the government for raising high interest rates while wages and prices fell.

At the interest on the Canadian National Railway bonds and advances were reduced a per cent, it would reduce the interest burden by $50,000,000 or $40,000,000.

HANSON SPEAKS
Hon. R. B. Hanson, Minister of Trade, said it would be impossible to bring down interest rates on Canadian National bonds because many of the bonds were held in the United States.

Mr. Hanson said that when the Liberals left office in 1930, they left trade declining and an import trade deficit. He said the Liberal government had done a great deal to turn this into a high trade surplus.

The result was that Canada became a dumping ground.

In 1930 and 1932 Canadian trade fell, due to world-wide depression, said the minister. Then came the Ottawa agreements of 1932. The consummation of these agreements was the victory of a principle which Liberals and Conservatives for the last forty years have been striving for—mutually reciprocal trade within the empire.

Under these conditions, he said, it was a triumph of a great principle for which this country stood for forty years.

FOUR CANADIANS
Four of the children are Canadians. They are Bruce and Grant, sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hanna of Toronto, and Mary and Ruth Bell, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Bell, also of Toronto. The parents are all veteran foreign missionary officials in China.

Ten children of United States parents and a few Scandinavians were also in the group, returning to school after holidays.

The disappearance of the Tungchow, one of the finest passenger craft sailing along the China coast, provided one of the most startling mysteries ever to shake the world in these perilous waters.

There have been numerous incidents of steamers and sailing craft being raided by pirates, but for so large a number of children to have disappeared in such an experience is virtually unprecedented.

Government grants totaled $118,183. These included $12,328 from motor license, $50,292 for direct relief and $55,563 on account of school grants. Revenue from waterworks sales was $22,225.

RELIEF ALLOCATION
The major disbursement was that of $91,871 for direct relief. This included the contribution from the government, plus $31,478 from general revenue.

A payment of $27,578 was made for debt interest and into the sinking fund. Expenditure on roads and bridges amounted to $46,128.

Administration of the public debt required $12,337 from the municipal treasury, while the board of school trustees received $60,962 from the general and Craigflower school levies, in addition to a special grant of $2,000 for the new McKenna Avenue School. Operation of the Sanborn Health Centre cost $12,543, less proceeds of $4,644, leaving a net cost of $7,899. The sum of $15,378 was expended on public health.

The total cost of social services, borne solely by the municipality without government assistance, was $12,477 last year. An additional $2,823 was given out in donations and grants to various bodies and organizations.

Without making any additional borrowing, total obligations totaling $97,133.50.

LESS ON RELIEF
Included in the annual statement was a chart showing the decrease in the number of people on relief in the municipality, from January, 1933, to December, 1934. The consequent lowering of cost is also shown.

The relief lists in the municipality reached their peak in January, 1934, when about 405 persons were receiving municipal support. With the total of this figure, relief administration cost the municipality more than $2,000 a month for January and February of 1935.

Since then the decline has been steady and the role as no time has been listed more than about 300 men as municipal charges. The 1934 peak was reached during January, February and March, when there were 390 men registered. The cost at this time was about $2,300 a month.

The lowest number of men on relief was recorded from July to October last year, when the number ranged from 260 to 315. At the end of the year it rose slightly to 305, at a cost of $2,323 a month.

The chart was of vital interest to those who have charge of relief administration, who, while not desiring to be too optimistic, felt the figures at least indicated improved conditions with an increase in available employment.

Families Forced To Flee From Floods

The Guinness has washed out a big section of the main line of the Elk River Timber Company, and tugs are standing by to take out families from the boom camp at the head of the river. The flood reached its high point at 1 o'clock this morning and has since receded slightly. The situation is more precarious than dangerous.

Engineers of the Public Works Department anticipated no serious flood damage in the Courtenay-Cumberland area provided the weather remained cool and rainfall normal. It was stated at the Parliament Buildings to-day. The department had received up news from the flooded district since midnight, although instructions were given to notify headquarters here of any serious developments.

Principal police reports were to the effect that all families at the foot of Courtenay Lake near Cumberland had evacuated their homes and were moving furniture by boat. This district is lowland and many summer homes are located there.

The Courtenay-Cumberland road, just outside the latter town, was under a foot of water, which also extended over the Ruxton-Cumberland Road, and to Maple Lake.

The dam behind Cumberland is still intact.

The Courtenay Road is washed out near Cooper's Corner, and the highway to Campbell River is closed. Floods have undermined the road and taken some of it away.

A foot of water also covers the Courtenay-Cumberland road, and there is one big lake from Courtenay to the foot of Courtenay Hill. Several houses were forced to evacuate their homes last evening, as the river banks were washed away.

The highway near Sandwich is in a bad condition, and the road out of Courtenay has been closed. Public Works Department workers are laboring in a foot of water.

EVIDENCE AT POISON TRIAL

Nine Women in Hungary
Gave Much Poison to Husbands, Says Witness

Associated Press
Debrecen, Hungary, Feb. 1.—Hand-fuls of earth from the soil surrounding the body of a victim of twenty years ago still contained enough poison to kill several men, a witness testified today at the trial of nine women accused of husband slaying.

The 1915 victim allegedly was slain by Mrs. John Nagy, seventy-two, who remained immobile as the public prosecutor declared she would arise from a gallows before the passing of a fortnight.

It was revealed the body of Mrs. Nagy's thirty-year-old grandson, allegedly poisoned in 1911, contained enough of the deadly powder even after four years to kill several persons.

A medical professor said that in most cases he found from the examination of exhumed bodies that the wives had given their husbands enough poison to kill twenty men.

The cadaverous face of the Nagy woman remained unchanged. The witness testified that the medical man testified these had been placed over the heads of the men because of a superstitious belief they would keep the husbands from coming back to haunt the wives.

LABOR BODY DROPS CANADA

Dominion Loses Vote in Governing Council of International Labor Office

Geneva, Feb. 1.—The United States and Russia yesterday were voted into the governing body of the International Labor Office while Canada and Belgium, which up to the time of the vote were given the right to sit as deputy members of the governing body until the next election in 1937.

The new set-up was determined at a closed meeting of the governing body. The members voted twenty-four to one that the eight leading industrial nations of the world were: Great Britain, the United States, France, Germany, India, Italy, Japan and Russia. Three members abstained from voting. The single opposition vote was cast by Canada.

Dr. W. A. Riddell, the Canadian representative, expressed Canada's firm opposition to the procedure. He reserved the right to consult with the Dominion as to whether an appeal should be made against the decision to the council of the League of Nations.

When the International Labor Office was established, provision was made that the eight leading industrial countries of the world should each have one member on the governing body and that only these eight should have voting powers.

Works Plans Said To Have Limits

Toronto, Feb. 1.—Solution of the unemployment problem in Ontario cannot be reached by any works programme financed only by the provincial government, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said yesterday in addressing representatives of the Ontario council of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

"We cannot in Ontario by any works programme financed by ourselves and unemployment," the Premier stated, and explained that the federal government no longer contributed to works programmes and had decreased its relief contribution.

Mr. Hepburn's address followed submission by members of the organization of labor's legislative programme for the forthcoming session of the provincial legislature.

LOANS TO PULP MILLS

Washington, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—James Jones, Reconstruction Finance Corporation head, yesterday said the corporation was prepared on reasonable assurance of repayment, to arrange loans for the development of pulp and paper mills in the southern United States.

MILITARY OPERATIONS IN FAR EAST

Once more attention of observers throughout the world is being attracted to the western border of Manchuria, where Japanese forces have been in clashes with Chinese province troops and Mongolians.

An Associated Press dispatch from Tokio recently said: "Rango (Japanese) news agency, in a dispatch from Hankow, Hubei, China, said Japanese-Manchurian troops Tuesday occupied Kailash Miao on the Manchuria-Mongol frontier, driving Mongols before them."

STUDY POSITION OF CONSUMERS

Advice Given to B.C. Fruit
Growers By Hon. K. C.
MacDonald

Canadian Press
Kelowna, B.C., Feb. 1.—The fruit industry was warned "never to forget for a moment the consumer's position" by Hon. K. C. MacDonald, B.C. Minister of Agriculture, in addressing delegates to the 48th annual meeting of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association here.

Any attempt to overreach or to exact a heavy toll from the consumer, he warned, would result in losses greater than the gains.

A. K. Lloyd of Kelowna was elected to the presidency, with the following executive members: C. S. Squire, secretary; Captain H. A. Porteus, Oliver; P. R. French, Vernon, and Captain Battray, Salmon Arm. The executive members will serve until a new constitution, now in process of revision, is adopted.

It is proposed to ask for amendments to the Marketing Act. The Okanagan growers are unitedly in favor, so far as the B.C. P.O.A. presents a cross-section of the organization being financed by a levy on all growers.

Another proposed amendment affects the method of election of the members of the tree fruit board. The first election was by accredited delegates. This has not satisfied the growers and they want a vote and the election to rest with them. Delegates would have power only to nominate members for the board.

Minister Denies Words Reported

Hon. R. B. Hanson Gives Statement to King on Speech in London, Ont.

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Feb. 1.—Minister of Trade and Commerce R. B. Hanson denied, in the House of Commons yesterday evening, that he had described Liberal leader Mackenzie King's attitude as that of a "traitor" during a discussion of the latter's policy on United States trade while he was Prime Minister of Canada.

Mr. King had been speaking of the Ottawa trade agreements and quoted from the Canadian Press report of a speech by Mr. Hanson in London, Ont., January 28.

"While I have in my hand the report on the address by the Minister of Trade and Commerce," Mr. King said, "may I read what he said in reference to myself?"

"Mr. King had declined to take reciprocal action at that time," referring to arrangements with the United States, "for fear of being provocative, the minister said. That the attitude of a traitor."

Mr. Hanson—I did not think I said that.

Mr. King—Here it is in quotation marks.

Mr. Hanson—I deny ever saying that.

WAR SURPRISED
Mr. King—I am pleased the minister denies it, because I must confess I was surprised when I saw it. The speech appeared in The Montreal Gazette of January 29 and was reported by the Canadian Press, dated at London, January 28.

Mr. King again read the section to which he referred.

Mr. Hanson—I deny the use of that language.

Mr. King again expressed pleasure at the denial, particularly, he said, in view of the kindly spirit with which he had welcomed the new minister a few days ago.

Japan Said To Violate Treaty

Russian "Premier" Tells Soviet Congress Portsmouth Pact Broken

Moscow, Feb. 1.—Japan was accused of flagrant violation of the Portsmouth Treaty, providing for demilitarization of Russo-Japanese frontiers, in a militant address to the Seventh All-Union Soviet Congress here yesterday by Vyacheslav Molotov, Russian "premier."

Molotov rejected a Japanese suggestion that the Siberia-Manchukuo border be demilitarized, asserting Tokyo had disregarded the Portsmouth Treaty of 1905, which provided no military operations should be carried on between Korea and Siberia and on Sakhalin Island.

The official newspaper, Pravda, warned: "We are ready at any moment to answer with triple blows the incendiaries of war."

The 1200 delegates to the congress had observed on Wednesday an announcement that the Soviet army in the last four years had increased from 600,000 to 940,000 men.

CHINA'S RIGHTS
Molotov provoked laughter when he remarked that the Portsmouth Treaty also pledged Russia and Japan to guarantee China's sovereign rights in Manchuria, and the Island Empire was jeered as the premier referred to its recent activities in that region.

The speaker, whose address closed discussion of his four-day report on Bolshevik progress since the last All-Union Congress in 1931, said he agreed with Koki Hirota, Japanese Foreign Minister, who recently proposed demilitarization of the Manchukuo-Siberia frontier, that a joint-aggression agreement would not be sufficient to secure good relations between Japan and Russia.

Japan's refusal to sign such an agreement, however, would not be proof of her peaceful intentions, the premier added.

WERE TO WITHDRAW
Molotov explained to the delegates that the Portsmouth Treaty obligated both signatories to withdraw their armies from Manchuria and provided that the Manchurian railways should be used only for peaceful purposes, granting Russia and China the right to have not more than 1500 soldiers along each kilometre of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Although the Soviet was entitled to keep guards in Manchuria, he said, all forces were withdrawn shortly after the Bolshevik revolution.

The Soviet has virtually completed negotiating with Japan arrangements

BRITISH STAGE "WAR" SETTLED

Canadian Press from Moscow
London, Feb. 1.—A broad plan for the settlement of any questions which may arise between the British Actors' Equity and British producers was approved yesterday by representatives of both sides.

The agreement, it is hoped, will bring an end to the two-week stage "war" which followed the Equity's Theatre's announcement that Mary Ellis Broadway light opera star, would appear in one of its productions. British Equity objected to Miss Ellis's appearance on the ground it would be a violation of the closed shop agreement which went into effect January 1.

Says Municipal Credit Shaken

T. Bradshaw, Bank of Canada Director, Speaks
Of Defaults

Canadian Press
Toronto, Feb. 1.—Canadian municipal credit had received a severe blow through the defaulting of certain municipalities in their debt obligations, said Thomas Bradshaw, a director of the Bank of Canada, speaking yesterday at the annual meeting of the North American Life Assurance Company, of which he is president.

During the last three years there had been 170 defaults by municipalities, representing $161,150,000, or 11 per cent of the Canadian municipal debt obligations, Mr. Bradshaw said.

The chief "disappointments" in this direction, he said, were in Ontario and the western provinces.

Your Baby and Mine

By NIKOLA MEYER ELBERG

PRE-SCHOOL EDUCATION SHOULD BE MENTAL EDUCATION

Parents, commonly, find greater satisfaction in their children's expression of mental rather than physical aptitudes. It seems almost as if they knew the latent on his brain or can rattle off nursery rhymes than when he can button his blouse or wig his hair and spoon dolly. But it is not.

In the years before school time arrives it will give Johnny a more rounded development to focus attention upon the accumulation of the art of being cheerful, rather than to turn him in mental gymnastics.

It is a difficult art for the child to learn to wait. It means the acquisition of balance. But he will wait, because it is the nature of him to wait. He will learn to run and climb and walk on tiptoe and backwards.

USING A SPOON ISN'T NATURAL

But there are other useful arts which we must teach him because they do not come naturally with growth. Children have a natural grasp of a cup and a spoon and later to manage their own feeding unaided.

They must learn how to get themselves into and out of their clothes, to blow their nose, wash their teeth, hang up their clothes, run, and carry objects without tripping, to dry and clean. The greater their ability and deftness in doing these everyday things, the more they will be able to handle the more complicated tasks of the future.

If you are puzzled about how to go about teaching your child from now on, you may find the following hints of use. "How to Teach the Pre-school Child," by a well-known, experienced, and successful teacher, is a book which you will find of great value in the home. It is a book which you will find of great value in the home.

BUTTONING IS A GAME

The years from one to five are the ideal ones for teaching these muscular controls. Now again will the child spend hours in the fascinating pastime of buttoning and unbuttoning. He will find it a game, and he will find it a game.

The child has no need for letters or figures in these years, but in his striving to become an independent and self-reliant individual he has vital need of these arts and occupations.

The exceptional child will absorb knowledge with no effort, but for all others let parents be content to give them mastery of their bodies and leave it to their teachers to introduce them to the delights of reading, writing and arithmetic.

To-morrow, "Avoid Stiffness in Planning Meals for Baby."

INHERIT WEAK MENTALITIES

Defective Parents Produced Seventeen Sub-normal Children, Report Shows

Canadian Press

Fredericton, N.S., Feb. 1.—The case of two mentally defective parents who had seventeen children, most of whom were also mentally defective, has been discussed by the Charley and Fredericton Guardian Committee.

E. C. Full of Fredericton said the parents were of the agricultural class. The husband was more than fifty and the wife more than forty years old.

Referring to some of the children, Mr. Full said four had died in infancy. Two others were certified as imbeciles.

Three mental defectives had been certified as mentally defective. One was at school, but was of low mentality, and two, aged eight and nine, had never attended school.

Legislative Insurance Committee decided to urge the government to introduce a bill to legalize voluntary sterilization.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By MARY E. DAUGES

A few years ago, you were hard put to it to meet an artichoke outside of a restaurant or one of our very largest cities. To-day, no cheap and well distributed in this interesting, crisp-topped vegetable that has made only a little stir of attention to become intimately acquainted with it.

One nice thing about the artichoke is that it is usually most plentiful when other green things are scarce, and that it is a vegetable that is cooked whole and should be fresh and green with leaves that pull off easily. Usually one artichoke is served to a person, either at the beginning of a meal or as a salad.

HOW TO PREPARE
To prepare for cooking, wash and cut stem close to leaves. Pull off hard outer leaves. Let stand in cold water to cover to which vinegar in the proportion of one tablespoon vinegar to one quart of water has been added. Cook in boiling salted water for thirty or forty minutes. Drain and serve with Hollandaise sauce, melted butter or hot mayonnaise. If it is eaten cold, you will prefer the mayonnaise cold too.

Each leaf is pulled off with the fingers, dipped into the sauce and the soft part at the end eaten, the hard part being discarded. The leaves have been pulled away and the nettle-like debris removed, the heart is eaten with a fork. The sauce is served in a separate individual dish or it can be served on the side of the plate.

ITALIAN STYLE ARTICHOKE
Four small globe artichokes, four tablespoons grated cheese, four tablespoons melted butter or olive oil.

Prepare artichokes as in preceding recipe and parboil in salted water for fifteen minutes. Drain and arrange in a single layer in a buttered baking dish. Pour over the oil and sprinkle with cheese. Cover and bake in a moderate oven for fifteen minutes. Serve from the baking dish with segments of lemon.

Of course you would not serve artichokes with sausage or corned beef, but almost any other meat may be served with artichokes. Lamb, fillet of beef, fish and chicken and sweetbread dishes find artichokes a splendid accompanying vegetable.

The Jerusalem artichoke is something else again—a root but not really. It is served much the same as a potato, substituted and is good creamed, dipped in butter and fried in deep fat. Another way to serve it is to boil until tender and then rub with melted butter, minced parsley and a little lemon juice.

TO-MORROW'S MENU
Breakfast: Baked apple, cereal, cream, cornmeal pancakes, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Creamed sweetbreads and mushrooms, French artichokes with Hollandaise sauce, cherry tart, milk, tea.

Dinner: Rabbit and bacon pie, creamed Jerusalem artichokes, salad of oranges and dates on crisp lettuce hearts, queen of puddings, milk, coffee.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES

ST. MARY'S A.Y.P.A.

A business meeting was held on Wednesday evening by St. Mary's A.Y.P.A.

Among the items discussed was the coming Valentine's dance, which is to be held in St. Mary's Hall on Wednesday, February 13. Final announcements were made concerning the A.Y.P.A. Conference, which will take place this week-end. After the business session and billiards were enjoyed by the members.

ST. PAUL'S Y.P.S.

The regular weekly meeting of St. Paul's Presbyterian Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was held on Monday evening, with a good attendance of members and friends present.

Mrs. Owen Campbell of Montreal was the speaker for the evening, and gave a very interesting talk on "Recipes for Health, Happiness and Success," as taken from the Bible.

The next meeting of the society will be held on Monday evening at 8 o'clock, when Mr. John Hunter will give the address.

The members are reminded of the evening service next Sunday, at which time the society is taking part. A good attendance of young people is hoped for at that service.

CENTENNIAL Y.P.A.

The members of Centennial Young People's Society met in the church parlour Tuesday evening. A good attendance was recorded. The short devotional period was led by Ruth Edwards, Frank Hollins and Miss Funder.

We were also glad to have Betty Corbin there, who helped with the playing of the hymns, with her violin. Rev. C. G. MacKenzie was the guest speaker of the evening and gave a very inspirational talk on the subject of "Age." A hymn and a short period of recreation concluded a very enjoyable evening.

ST. MARK'S A.Y.P.A.

The regular meeting was held in St. Mark's Parish Hall on Wednesday at 8 o'clock. Notice was given of the conference which is being held on February 2 and 3 and the banquet to be held in the diningroom of Spencer's and the dance at the P. O. Hall. Miss E. Dempsey gave a most interesting talk on X-ray work.

VICTORIA WEST UNITED Y.P.S.

The Victoria West United Y.P.S. held its regular meeting Tuesday evening. The devotional study led by Jack Price and Mr. Milley closed with a hymn.

The penny fair will be held on March 5, in which all the members will take an active part. New ideas are being considered for the fair, which promises to be an interesting event for young and old. A Valentine social will be held on Tuesday, February 12.

Following the business period, questions were asked by Jack Price, after which a general discussion took place.

The guest speaker for next week will be Rev. G. Boothroy, and all young people are asked to turn out to support the society and the society and the speaker.

Operatic Society Concert Postponed

Canadian Press

Due to unforeseen circumstances, the variety concert which the Victoria Operatic Society had arranged for next Tuesday evening in the club rooms on Rockland Avenue has been postponed to a later date.

The concert, which includes singing and operatic numbers, as well as a one-act play, will be given towards the middle of February. The definite date will be announced in a few days.

U.S. PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER IS BRIDE

Canadian Press

London, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press cable).—It is expected that the bridegroom worn by the Duchess of Kent on the occasion of her marriage to Their Majesty's youngest son on November 29 last eventually will be placed permanently in the London museum.

"She plays two hours a night and often during the day, but she never wears over it. She loves it too much," her mother says.

At the Imperial Chess Club keen admiration is also expressed for the scientific command of the game shown by fifteen-year-old Rosemary Dew of Plymouth. Rosemary has not lost a game so far. She always keeps her nerves. "The only way to find a weak position or a false move is to analyse your games afterwards," she says.

"There is no reason in the world why a woman should not become a judge, or even a Lord Chief Justice."

"Our view is that the time is now ripe for women judges in this country. The United States have them, and so have quite a number of other countries. Already we have women magistrates."

"They that women have been practicing as barristers for so many years, it is surely possible to find some whose qualifications fit them for a judgeship. Women have to conform to the law of the land, just the same as men, and there is no reason why they should not have a share in the administration of that law."

Five-year-old Girl Masters Chess

Canadian Press

London, Feb. 1.—A nine-year-old girl, Ellen Saunders, learned chess from watching her father as he learned, when she was five. She knew all the moves in a few weeks, now chess experts predict a great future for her in the chess world.

"She plays two hours a night and often during the day, but she never wears over it. She loves it too much," her mother says.

At the Imperial Chess Club keen admiration is also expressed for the scientific command of the game shown by fifteen-year-old Rosemary Dew of Plymouth. Rosemary has not lost a game so far. AGHE CROM LAMP

WE WILL TELL YOU—BETTER LIGHT MEANS BETTER SIGHT

THE wise and skilled men who have made a life study of the needs of human eyes will tell you that "better light means better sight."

It is difficult to overestimate the importance of this fact. Records show one-fourth of young people and three-fourths of people over 40 suffer from defective vision. Good lighting, too, aids defective eyes even more than normal eyes.

Less Hazards Lamps give the most light for the power they consume.

TIMBER PLAN IS OPPOSED

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—Representations have been made to the British government, in the strongest possible terms, against acquisition of a timber contract between British timber companies and Russian producers, proposed to the terms of the Canada-Russia agreement of 1923.

This information was given the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in answer to a question raised by William Hanbury, Liberal, Vancouver-Burrard.

Mr. Hanbury referred to reports that such a contract was being negotiated, and that it contained the so-called "full clause" by which the Russian producers agree to meet any drop in price and consequent oil companies on the British market.

Timber Distribution Limited, a British firm, had negotiated an agreement with the Soviet Union in Paris, Mr. Bennett said, but the terms were not yet known to the Dominion Government. Throughout the negotiations, however, the government had been in close touch, and had urged on the British authorities the necessity of the full clause being included.

"I think," Mr. Bennett said, "there is much misapprehension with respect to some facts in connection with these contracts. These contracts do not take out of the Ottawa agreement."

"The task has become more difficult for reasons which I need not go into at this time, other than to say that an effort has been made, apparently, to convey the impression that Canadian timber value to these provisions or to the producers itself, and that has somewhat increased the difficulty of dealing with it from the government standpoint."

"But every possible step is being taken by representation made by the High Commissioner to the British government. When the matter reaches the president of the Board of Trade, some final arrangements will be made."

Neither the British nor the Canadian government is concerned in the plan, Mr. Bennett said, but the plan is being made by a private company known as Timber Distributors with the Russian authorities. After the contract is made, it is believed that that contract is not in any way the provision of the Ottawa agreement, and that action is taken in accordance with the provisions of the Ottawa statute.

TELEVISION IS RECOMMENDED

London, Feb. 1.—The establishment of television on a country-wide basis was one step nearer as the result of an announcement yesterday in the House of Commons that the government had approved the report of a committee which had investigated this scientific invention.

Mr. Kingsley Wood, Postmaster-General, said the British Broadcasting Corporation would be entrusted with the task of broadcasting television, and would make a substantial contribution to the inauguration of this service. The committee found television on a high-frequency basis had reached such a standard of development as to justify the first steps towards establishment of a public service of this type.

The Postmaster-General told the House present plans for establishment of a television station in London later this year. At the same time, he indicated it would be some time before the service could be provided on a national scale.

The Broadcasting Board will be put at the disposal of the Television Development Association for a public meeting at an appropriate date, it was decided by the council yesterday evening in reply to a letter from the association asking for their co-operation. "Victory's property must be kept in the public domain," commented Mr. Alexander Leitch. "This is a move in the right direction."

New York Rangers Continue Sensational Hockey Comeback

THE SPORTS MIRROR

There is an unpleasant taste in the mouths of Victoria's rugby players and followers. The Capital City had looked forward to putting several boys on the British Columbia rep team which was scheduled to play California. All points for that trip were awarded by Vancouver. Victoria's delegates to the British Columbia Rugby Union meeting, at which the matter was decided, voted on the side of the victors.

While they had certain grounds to be doubtful about the matter, the main reason could have been a spark of hope for the series in the south if they had looked hard enough for it. Indeed they do not seem to have been so. The action of the mainlanders with regard to rugby proposals this year. Earlier in the season they had not the McKechnie Cup season in mind.

Shortly after the rugby season opened, the set-up looked good. Variety appeared to have a splendid chance of claiming a place in the McKechnie Cup run. On the mainland, they were reported to be favored by Vancouver. The students played in Victoria and the Capitals defeated them. That, by simple arithmetic, placed the locals in a favored position, indicating Victoria had a good chance of taking Vancouver.

The weather stepped in and prevented all play for a couple of weeks, and during that time caused the cancellation of a suggested Victoria-Vancouver McKechnie Cup game which was supposed to take place on a game for potential provincial rep men. It was understood Variety would not participate in the southern invasion, owing to interference with classes. However, had the students been considered for the team, their standing could have been determined from their game in Victoria.

Victors in the only intercity game played, the local boys appeared to have an edge on both Vancouver and Variety as far as the mainlanders put an end to negotiations.

There is no suggestion that Vancouver vetoed the series because it was deficient in good rugby material this year. But it was tough on Victoria.

Another unusual feature of the business of the provincial union meeting, as carried in the columns of the press, was the expressed willingness of the North Shore All-Blacks to send their own team south and then their right to the school-fest back in Victoria against the team by a British Columbia team.

The trip is definitely off now. And the boys will still play rugby. But they will probably find it a bit disconcerting to see the rewards of good play in the concrete form of a glimmering trophy. They play for the sake of the game, it is true, but certainly they deserve more encouragement in the way of trophies and prizes than the provincial union has been able to provide them this year.

Bill Tilden is the "boss" of the tennis world. He is now being exploited by promoter Bill O'Brien, but the fact is apparent that Tilden is the touring giant of racketeers would be just another bunch of well-meaning young fellows trying to make his name. It was not until Tilden publicly stated his annual status that professional tennis became a paying project. Bill retains his attractiveness, from a box office standpoint, the same as he did when capturing local, national and international titles. He has enough cups and medals to stock a good-sized pawnshop.

Coupled with Ellsworth Vines in the first of a series of doubles featuring two former champion-purses, Lester Stueben and George Lott, he played through eighty-seven heart-breaking games of tennis requiring nine minutes short of three hours before victory was achieved. Tilden was outwitted and outplayed at the start. When it came time to hear down it was the young-old veteran of forty-two years who rose up and smote down the opposition. Coupled with a twenty-two game match in which he defeated Lott earlier the same evening, it was not a bad night's work for one of his years.

Unhappily fans will say the games are arranged in advance. If such is the case the troupe is putting on a finished act and fooling the experts. If such is the case Bill Tilden wishes the could do it on a stage, where so much attention is not required. Back in the days when Bill—please do not call him Tilden—tried his hand at the stage, the best part he could get was that of a butler. He was permitted to say but two or three words at the most. The majority of his walk and bearing made many doughers when they saw him in the spotlight. It is the same on the tennis court today. You know it is Bill Tilden when he deffs his creator and dominates the play.

CANADIENS AND DETROIT DRAW

Rushing along on the crest of the most convincing comeback wave the National Hockey League has seen in years, Lester Patrick's New York Rangers were more satisfied than ever to-day that nothing can keep them from the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Bringing their comeback record to eight wins and three ties in eleven games, Rangers yesterday evening registered a 3 to 2 win over Toronto Leafs, the team they probably would meet if they finished on top in the American section.

The best hat wings could do in Detroit yesterday evening was 4 to 4 tie with Leo Dandurand's Montreal Canadiens. Solidly in second place on points up on Montreal, but still eleven behind Toronto, Montreal Maroons knocked off New York Americans 2 to 0 in New York. It was Joe Simpson's second defeat since he checked up the team earlier in the week.

THREE GOAL SPLATAGE
The Rangers scored three goals in the second period yesterday evening after Toronto had opened the counting clock with a goal in the first. Cec Dillon scored the first goal, and George Hainsworth, Toronto, in the second period. Toronto attempts to get more than one goal in the third.

Cec Dillon got two of the New York goals and Bert Connolly, former Montreal Hawk, the other. Andy Blair and Sam Boff scored the Leafs goals.

Winning Canadiens played thruplacked hockey at Detroit, the home team coming from behind to overcome a three-goal lead, Wilder Larocelle and George Hainsworth, Toronto, and George and Sylvie, gave the habitants their scores in the first.

Herb Lewis and Earl Roche ripped goals past the Canadiens' net. Bill Cude in that period and after a scoreless second Jack Adams' team went ahead on markers by Red Wastler, recently brought up from Detroit Olympian, and Eddie Goodfellow. Wings were trying to win the game with a gang attack when Leroy Goldworthy broke away on a side rush and sent Roche for his third goal half-way through the third.

The American's defense of Alex Smith and Bill Brydge let Russ Blinco and Herb Cain through in the second and third periods for the Maroons goals at New York. The shutout marked the sixth Alex Connell, Maroon goalie, has set up in his remarkable comeback after a season away from the game.

He kicked out only twenty-three New York shots to join Tiny Thompson, Boston; Lorne Chabot, Chicago, and George Hainsworth, Toronto, in the select class who have played half a dozen perfect games.

Rangers—Kerr, Starr, Bellet, Boucher, W. Cook, P. Cook, Dillon, Murdoch, Keating, MacKenzie, Scott, Heller, Connolly, Mason and Patrick.

Toronto—Hainsworth, Horner, Clancy, Tedman, Kline, Boff, Boff, Day, Blair, Connolly, Davidson, Primmey Kelly and A. Jackson.

SUMMARY
First period—No score. Penalties: Starr, 10:30.
Second period—1, Maroons, Blinco, 7:30; 2, New York, Connolly, 7:35; 3, New York, Dillon, 14:30; 4, New York, Dillon (blanket), 15:30. Penalties: Murdoch, 5:10; Dillon, 10:10; Day (Kilrea), 7:10.
Third period—Kerr, 50; Hainsworth, 27.

Maroons—Connell, Wentworth, Conacher, Blinco, Robinson, Trotter, R. J. Smith, Northcott, Miller, McManis, Minter, Gracie, Cal, Galtner and Evans.

Americans—Worster, Dutton, Murray, Conn, Oliver, Egan, Himes, Herx, Hargart, Chapman, Carr, Schirmer, McVeigh, Brydge and A. Smith.

Referee: Mike Rodden and Bill Stewart.

Suspension For Chinese Cagers

As an aftermath of the riot at the Y.M.C.A. gym last Saturday evening, following a basketball game between the Chinese students and the Rangers, during which Chinese and white spectators engaged in a free-for-all, the Chinese team has been suspended from the Sunday School basketball League. The action took place at a meeting held this week.

At the same meeting the protest of the Chinese team on the game, which was won by the Rangers, was thrown out. As a result of the suspension the Chinese will not engage in further competition this season.

CANZONERI IS TOO CRAFTY

Uses Experience to Win Thrilling Bout From Young Leo Rodak

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Tony Canzoneri, New York, former world lightweight champion, temporarily halted the title aspirations of Leo Rodak, Chicago youngster, in a thrilling ten-round battle, fought before 14,000 spectators in the Chicago stadium yesterday evening. Canzoneri, too experienced and too crafty for the twenty-one-year-old Chicagoan, won the unanimous decision of the two judges and referee Sammy Gitterman. Rodak, who graduated from the amateur ranks as a golden glove champion only a year and a half ago, was making his first invasion of the 125-pound class and found the going too tough.

Canzoneri held a two-pound weight advantage over the former amateur sharpshooter. The little New York Italian scaled 125½, with his Chicago rival tipping the beam at 129½.

The match, fought under the auspices of the veteran title firm of Jim Mullen and Max Lewis, drew $31,000, their fourth successful venture in as many years.

Dukely, a rough-punching Chicago middleweight, scored an upset in holding back Rodak, Syracuse, to a bruising, bloody draw in the ten-round semi-final. The spectators booed the decision, evidently believing the Chicagoan had won.

Rodak, who sprang into fame by knocking out today's Tarzan, the middleweight champion, last New Year's Day, was a badly-bruised warrior as he left the ring. Dukely's opened up cuts in Rodak's eyebrow, in the fourth round a blasting right hand smash split Rodak's left eyebrow and was opened up in every round thereafter until the finish.

Dukely weighed 158½, with Rodak weighing 155½.

McCREADY IS MAT WINNER

Takes Two Out of Three Falls From Hal Rumburg; Foreign Gains Draw

Vancouver, Feb. 1.—Earl McCready, British Empire wrestling champion of America, took a two fall decision from Hal Rumburg, Spokane, to win the main event of yesterday evening's wrestling show here.

McCready weighed 228 and Rumburg 222.
Cory Kanamitsu, 220, San Francisco, and Jack Ferguson, 218, Vancouver, tangled for four fast rounds and ended up all square. There were no falls.

Cliff Olson, 198, Minneapolis, defeated Mike Strickland, 208, Hollywood, taking the only fall of the three-round match in the second with a flying wristlock.

LANSKY-BRADDOCK TO MEET
New York, Feb. 1.—Art Lansky, Minneapolis heavyweight, risks his pretensions as a championship challenger against belling Jimmy Braddock over the fifteen-round rope to-night.

Lansky, though beaten by Steve Hamas in his last match here, is a 18 to 5 favorite to defeat Braddock, former light-heavyweight challenger, who started a recent comeback campaign by beating John Henry Lewis, Arizona negro.

HOLDOUTS IN MAJOR BALL

Several of National League Clubs Having Trouble With Stars

New York, Feb. 1.—Strictly speaking, it is impossible at this time of year for any ball player to be a "holdout" but several well-known personalities in major league baseball are giving excellent impersonations.

Whether you call them holdouts or simply athletes in search of more money, the list does not seem to be getting any shorter. In fact, it is already here.

Van Lingle Mungo, fire-ball right-hander, Ralph Borje, Joe Garagi, Sam Leslie and Ralph Koussche of the happy Dodge family, have been their contracts come without any visible pleasure.

GIANTS HAVE TROUBLES
The New York Giants have signed only one player, but the list does not include such key-men as Dick Bartell, the fighting shortstop obtained from the Phillies; Hal Schumacher and Roy Parmelee, first stringer right-hander, and Joe Moore, crack outfielder.

Outsuh, Pittsburgh Pirates big first baseman, admittedly is seeking more money and there is considerable doubt too, whether Wally Hoyt, who staged a sensational comeback last year, will sign at the first price the club offered.

Chicago Cubs have signed sixteen men but Chuck Klein may do plenty of arguing before he comes to an agreement. Kelle Bostons, first baseman of Chicago White Sox, is just about the only serious contract-objector so far reported in the American League.

Juvenile Soccer
Juvenile soccer fixtures scheduled to-morrow follow:
Under Eighteen
Victoria West Cub vs. Victoria City, Victoria West Park; referee, Viggers.

Under Sixteen
Capitals vs. Hill's Corner, Heywood Avenue; referee, Sapp.
St. Louis College vs. Equinault, Central Park; referee, Holmes.
All fixtures will commence at 10:30 o'clock.

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—In a wild match, Joe Christie, Glendale, Calif., defeated John Kaitan, Winnipeg, two falls to one here yesterday evening in the feature bout of a wrestling card which drew a record local crowd of 4,500 fans. The Australian system of all ten-minute rounds was used in the feature bout.

Southern Grapplers to Meet in Light Heavy Mat Bout To-morrow Night

With a list of impressive victories to his credit, Johnny LaRue, former Norman University, Oklahoma, light heavyweight, will demonstrate his prowess to local wrestling fans in the feature bout on promoter Fred Richardson's card at the Tillicum gym to-morrow night. He will meet the highly rated Ken Holls, of New Orleans, who has gained quite a following here through his recent win over Red Lyons, Missouri.

In the semi-windup, Karl Martin, Vancouver grappler, will meet Abdul Khan, Afghanistan, over five eight-minute rounds.

SAM LANGFORD DOWN AND OUT

Once Great "Boston Tar Baby" Is a Pauper in New York; Has Gone Blind

New York, Feb. 1.—Sam Langford, the boxing terror who was known as the "Boston Tar Baby," although he came from Nova Scotia, was threatened to-day with eviction from the dingy room where he guards an empty suitcase, a few brittle clippings, steel-rimmed glasses which are only for show over his sightless eyes, and the gloves with which he best Joe Gans, Harry Wills and a good many more of the 138 opponents who fell before his power.

They told the gnarled old negro yesterday he would have to leave the room in Boston's negro belt that he is unable to pay for it but he didn't seem to be able to understand it, and only kept saying "No, no. Never such a thing happening to Sam Langford."

GREAT WARRIOR
The great negro warrior has drifted down until he is a pauper, living on the goodness of those who remember when he was admittedly too good to win a championship. The champions steered clear of him because, as Sam says, "they knew I'd knock their blocks off." He fought his last fight in 1924.

HOCKEY STAR IN HOSPITAL

Buddy Hammond, Winnipeg Amateur, Injured When Crashed Into Boards

Winnipeg, Feb. 1.—Buddy Hammond, first centre player for Seattle Fishermen, was removed to hospital yesterday evening for examination after being injured in a Manitoba Senior Hockey League game with Elmwood, which the Fishermen won 3 to 1.

Hammond, the league leading scorer, was spending the evening with the Elmwood team when he was bumped into the boards by Roy Johnson, Elmwood wingman. He fell unconscious, and was removed to hospital. He regained consciousness shortly after admission to the hospital ward.

Physicians said an X-ray examination would be made today to determine if Hammond suffered any serious head injuries. It was believed his head struck the boards as he fell to the ice.

TIED IN LOS ANGELES OPEN

Finishing the regulation seventy-two holes of the rich Los Angeles open golf tournament, Johnny Revolta, left, young Milwaukee pro, and Victor Ghent of Doni, N.J., tied for the lead with scores of 285. The golfers are shown here tearing the $100 cheque for first prize in half, each sharing alike. In an eighteen-hole play-off, Ghent defeated Revolta for the title.

OUR MAIL BAG

SUSPENDED

To the Sports Editor:—On behalf of the Chinese Students Intermediate Basketball team I wish to inform the sporting public that at a secret meeting of the executive of the Sunday School League the team was suspended. The reason for suspension was on technical grounds, and for fear that the white spectators might retaliate for the Chinese fighting at the last game. No doubt the league executive was looking after our welfare?

Prior to the game on January 26, the students had petitioned the league for an efficient referee. Just before the game we informed the president of the league, V. Shoemaker, that we were playing the game under protest.

During the first half of the game we were so disgusted that we intended to walk off the floor. Of course, this might have meant losing the game by default. When the game was finished, fighting followed. Let me assure the public that not one of our players had any part whatsoever in the melee. Why were they suspended? You will have to ask the executive of the Sunday School League.

The suspension means that we cannot play in any game for the rest of the season. Yet, we were no more responsible than the opposing team. All we want is to have another chance to prove that we are right. On Monday morning we informed the league that we intended to protest.

Tuesday the executive held a secret meeting and suspended us. This means that we will never get a chance to prove ourselves. We will not be allowed to play any games in the city and our protest will be ignored before we have a chance to plead our cause. Just another outstanding example of good sportsmanship!

We had protested on the grounds (1) that the referee was inefficient and prejudiced to the Chinese Students' team; (2) that he had been previously suspended as a player from basketball circles, therefore he was incompetent to referee such an important game. Needless to say, our protest was fully justified, but it was not even considered. The right thing was to grant us a replay with the referee.

This suspension was unprovoked, uncalled for and intolerably unfair. We do not understand why we have been suspended. We are not the scapegoat. Please get both sides had a part in the fighting and yet we are singled out for suspension. If they do not wish any further trouble it is only fair that both sides be suspended, because our players had no more part in the fighting than their opponents. Why the discrimination? We demand a fair treatment in the name of good sportsmanship.

DOUGLAS CHAN, Chinese Students' Club secretary, P.O. 1415, Victoria.

Portland Is Still Headed For First

Bucs Continue Winning Drive in Northwest Hockey League to Whip Leading Seattle Hawks 3 to 1; Tied for Second With Vancouver

Portland, Feb. 1.—Manager Bobby Ross's early season boast that he would send his Portland Buckaroos into the Northwest Hockey League playoffs, apparently was no idle one. The Bucs headed for Seattle today, confident they would humble the Sea Hawks again in their midseason drive for the league leadership, and with yesterday evening's 3 to 1 victory over the Sound City club here leaving them in a second place tie with Vancouver.

Playing the same tight defensive game that gave them the decision over the Lakers at Vancouver Wednesday night, the Bucs stood off all but one lone Seattle threat, and that late in the third period when goalie Andy Atkinson was pulled out for a shot to clear Moon Mullin's drive. Mullin beat the goalie to the puck and poked it into the open cage to save the Sea Hawks from a shutout.

Two fast goals

After a scoreless first period the Bucs front line found its sharpshooting eye and picked off two quick goals. Paschos Lyons, crack winger, scooped up a pass from Ralph Blyth and whipped the disc past Bennett Venn in the Seattle net. Barely four minutes later Louie Couper called down the left boards and slid the puck across to Jimmy Evans and the Portland winger was past Venn to put the Bucs two up.

The veteran Jack Arbouze chalked up the third Portland goal on a solo rush early in the third period, scoring from a close range shot.

GUEST LEADS IN OPEN GOLF

Comes Through With Sensational 66 in Tournament at Glendale, Calif.

Glendale, Cal., Feb. 1.—Charley Guest posted one of his increasingly frequent sensational golf scores yesterday when he shot a 66, four strokes under par, to take the undepicted lead at the end of the first round of the Oakland $6,100 open tournament.

Stepping along in a fashion that belied his forty-five years, Macdonald Smith, that veteran Carnoustie Scot, breezed in in second place with a fine 68, while another of the oldsters, Walter Nagin, Detroit, was third with a 69.

Smith's card equaled that of Wednesday's leader in the first half of the field, Jack Holbrook, youthful local amateur.

There were the only three who could successfully cope with a troublesome wind, that crept through the Verdugo Hills, and crack per. Only three accomplished this feat Wednesday. They were, besides Holbrook, Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., and L. S. Bolstad, Minneapolis, who had 69.

BOND MARKET UP FRACTIONS

The foreign list was dominated by a slump in Russian obligations on the curb market, where advice from Washington that debt negotiations had been broken off with the Soviet Republic was translated into declines of 1 to 2 points in loans of this country.

U.S. Government obligations were generally a bit better.

Mr. Parker briefly traced the history of the Canadian school and showed the influence upon it of the European schools. He reviewed the

PAGANS

His charge of paganism against O. B. Shaw is another matter. That gentleman, when asked if he was a Christian, replied, "Yes," but added that often in the company of the elect he felt lonely. To the adherents of one creed, the creed of others often seems blasphemous, perverted or just silly.

Even the brethren of the C.C.F. (Magical) have among themselves. In conduct or creed the half-mark of true religion?

"By their fruits ye shall know them." There are few finer places for religious tolerance than Shaw's play, "The Jew" and the preface thereof, which championed the cause of the Jew, and at the very peak of the era of religious intolerance, he exposed the religious racket; he was an active street corner worker for Socialism, when Socialism was not considered respectable.

The dumb, tortured, helpless victims of the virulent and unyielding inquisition have always had in Shaw an ardent and persistent defender; of how many of the paid advocates of Christian conduct can we say as that he said?

TO SMOKE OR NOT TO SMOKE

To the Editor:—We are glad to see that "our daily papers have published some statistics on the use of tobacco." This is a day of scientific investigation and research. Medical science is also making scientific pronouncements. According to Dr. C. L. Lansing of Michigan, "40 per cent of all babies of cigarette smoking mothers die before they reach the age of two years, due to nicotine poisoning. A baby born of a cigarette smoking mother is sick-it is poisoned and may die within two weeks of birth."

The Evening Star of Washington, D.C., quotes the prominent Dr. Binch as follows: "Forty per cent of the children of women who smoke die before they reach the age of two years, due to nicotine poisoning. A baby born of a cigarette smoking mother is sick-it is poisoned and may die within two weeks of birth."

Now, if 40 per cent die, may before two years, how long will the remaining 60 per cent live? Then how long will the Anglo Saxon race survive?

Canada's only hope is that her women do not follow the fashion of her sisters to the east.

C.C.F.

To the Editor:—As we are seeing so many letters on the C.C.F. of late in your paper, I thought I would like to say a few words.

It is rather a pity that more people will not read the C.C.F. manifesto for themselves. It is written in plain English and is easy to understand. It would save them many a blunder. Even yet some folks say the C.C.F. is atheistic or unchristian or against God and religion, whereas the manifesto and platform is distinctly against any interference with the churches or religion in any form whatsoever. Surely everyone is over being scared of the "red" bugaboo by this time. For it is our own prejudice to our own worst enemy. All new ideas put fear into unlearned minds. If only our churches would stop talking and expecting the material return of Christ in the body and get to work behind the C.C.F. and help bring in the new social order we are all longing for: God has no hands but human hands to carry out His will.

T.B. SEAL CAMPAIGN

To the Editor:—We would appreciate it very much if you would print the following notice for us:

"The Kiwanis Club of Victoria wishes to thank the citizens of Victoria and surrounding districts for their generous support in their T.B. Seal Campaign, held during the Christmas season. The sale of Christmas seals met with a ready response and the Kiwanis Club feels that its efforts were well worth while."

"There are still a number of club members outstanding and the club would appreciate it very much if those who still intend to send in their dollar or any portion thereof would do so as soon as possible so it is the intention to close the campaign at the end of the month—C. W. Fungman, chairman of the T.B. Seal Committee."

B.C. Ports Show Big Increase In Business

Tonnage Handled Last Year Almost Equal to That of Peak Year of 1930; New Westminster Shows Largest Gain

Vancouver, Feb. 1.—British Columbia ports handled 5,438,773 tons of cargo last year compared with 5,568,912 tons in the peak year of 1930, but the highest total since then, the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange reported today.

Vancouver exports in 1934 were 2,514,604 tons and her imports 1,179,213 tons. New Westminster handled 747,321 tons exports and 34,616 tons imports. Vancouver was down approximately 300,000 tons from 1933 but New Westminster showed a gain of 57,000 tons.

Port Alberni reported a gain of 44,000 tons, Ocean Falls a gain of 1,000 tons, Powell River a gain of 25,000 tons, English Bay a gain of 20,000 tons, Union Bay a gain of 18,000 tons and Nanaimo a gain of 20,000 tons.

In imports, Vancouver gained 140,000 tons, New Westminster 14,000 tons, Ocean Falls 9,000 tons and Blubber Bay 4,500 tons.

The export of lumber, not including pulp, comprised by the exchange from information supplied by the Pacific Lumber Inspection Bureau, totaled 859,464,714 feet dispatched compared with 862,500,000 feet in 1933.

Vancouver led all ports as lumber loading point, with 308,778,726 feet, followed by the Fraser River with 218,881,000 feet. Grain exports from Vancouver were 54,382,801 bushels, nearly 100,000 more than 1933.

The port of Victoria is not reported upon by the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange, therefore it is not mentioned in the above report. This port, however, along with all other ports in British Columbia showed a steady gain in imports and exports, particularly in lumber, during the last year.

Seamen to Meet This Evening

Members of the Seafarers' Industrial Union will meet this evening at 8 o'clock at the union hall at 20 Erie Street, James Bay.

Election of delegates to the first conference of the union in Vancouver shortly will take place and general business will be discussed. As this is an important meeting it is requested that a large number of members attend.

Captain Leaves Sister In City

Mission City, B.C., Feb. 1.—Captain Angus Macdonald, eighty-one, resident here twenty years, is dead. Born in Ontario, he settled in New Westminster in 1909 and for three years served as chief officer aboard the famous W. H. Beaver. For nine years he was master of the Mission-Matquelt ferry.

Mrs. R. H. Walker of Victoria is a sister.

Passenger Puts Blame on Line

New York, Feb. 1.—A passenger on the liner Mohawk who examined lifeboats of the ship before she sailed, and said he found them encrusted with ice, yesterday testified, "I blame the Ward Line for the disaster," and that in his opinion not a life would have been lost had the vessel been in proper condition.

The passenger, Dr. Samuel Smith of Brooklyn, told members of the United States Shipping Inspection Service board inquiring into the collision of the Mohawk and the Norwegian freighter Tallman, that the gear and ropes and lifeboats were frozen and covered with ice.

Want Badminton Play On Coast

Vancouver, Feb. 1.—Both Vancouver and Victoria clubs are expected to bid for the Canadian badminton championship, Secretary Roy Kimmond of the British Columbia Badminton Club, announced yesterday evening. The applications will go before the provincial body's annual meeting here on February 9.

The venue for the Dominion shuttle meet will be set at the Canadian Badminton Association's annual meeting in Ottawa in the first week in March.
